$100,000 Pay Roll Hike for Fulton Is Favored

BOARD EXPECTED TO VOTE INCREASE
NEXT SATURDAY

ploye of County To Receive More Pay Under Budgets Recommended by Commissioners.

MUNICIPAL COURT ASKS BIGGEST HIKE

Longino and Ragsdale
Oppose Move To Raise
Pay of Members of Board to $300 Monthly.

Pay roll increases which, if voted, will total nearly $100,000 annually, were recommended by members of the board of county commissioners Wednesday when each committee chairman submitted a report asking hikes in his department. According to figures compiled Wednesday afternoon the estimated total will be $90,948.

No definite action was taken on any of the recommendations and County Auditor J. C. Respass was instructed to prepare a complete record of all proposed salaries in comparison with 1934 figures, which will be studied by the commissioners prior to a meeting to be held Saturday morning, when it is expected that the program will go through according to present estimates.

The largest proposed increase is in the offices of municipal court, where a total of $805 monthly, a recommendation occasioned partly by the numerous $22.50 hikes to deputy marshals now earning $162.50, increases in general offices total $713 and the clerk of superior court has been recommended for an increase of $583.33 in his monthly pay roll.

Increases for all employees of the county will receive additional compensation for 1935, from teamsters at the convict camps to the commissioners themselves, whose pay will be raised from $250 to $300 monthly.

The move to increase the commissioners' pay has been opposed by George F. Longino, 1934 chairman, and J. A. Ragsdale, the other holdover member. Longino said he will oppose any move that will interfere with the county's budget.

Among the larger increases is a hike from $392.50 to $425 for J. M. George, chief marshal of municipal court, and O. H. Puckett, chief clerk. The same increase is proposed for Chief of Council.

Gypsy 'Sold' to 3 Husbands Jailed in DeKalb Robberies

Gypsy "Princess" Rosie Tine, alias Bimbo, whose sales into matrimony in accordance with gypsy custom, she told DeKalb County Chief of Police W. O. Parker, have grossed her mother, Mrs. Catherine Nichols, gypsy queen, a total of $8,500 during recent years, was being held in DeKalb county jail Wednesday night for questioning in connection with recent robberies there, according to DeKalb county police. Husband No. 1, Pete Tine, alias Bimbo, also was held at the jail under the same charge.

Bimbo and the princess were arrested Wednesday morning by Chief Parker, who questioned them at length and, through their answers, learned a great deal about gypsy tribal law and customs, he said.

Princess Rosie told Chief Parker that the last seven or eight years of her life had been one new husband after another, and each husband brought her thousands of dollars to her mother, she said.

Paid $5,000 for Her.

Bimbo, she said, paid her mother $3,000 for her in crisp new bills in 1927. Life with Pete, she said, was one of great happiness, which was brought to a sudden end six months after the marriage ceremony when her mother took her from Pete and paid $2,500, also in crisp new bills, sold her to one Joe Morris with whom she lived for three months.

After the three months with Morris, which the princess did not describe as being blissful or otherwise, she was taken from him by her mother and sold to a George Adams in Oklahoma. Adams, she told Chief Parker, paid $3,000 in crisp new bills for her. Adams, she said, was father of her two-year-old son, Miller Adams.

She left Adams, she said, and went to Chicago where, in a gypsy camp there, she met Adolph Bimbo, brother of Pete, husband No. 1. From Adolph she learned that Pete was living at a Walker street address in Atlanta. She accompanied Adolph to Atlanta, where she and Pete were reunited.

CUMMINGS PLEADS FOR GOLD POLICIES

Attorney-General Envisages 'Chaos' if Court's Decision Is Unfavorable

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. (AP)—To prevent "chaos" and avoid serious international economic conferences "on crutches," Attorney-General Cummings today urged the supreme court to uphold Congress in prohibiting gold payments.

Polished and speaking in a clear, calm voice, he told the tribunal that if contracts and bonds predicated on the gold standard are to be paid in specie or the equivalent of the gold dollar an intolerable situation would ensue.

At issue was the familiar clause of most bond issues calling for payment in gold or in dollars having a total gold value equal to the amount of specie stipulated in the bond.

Since the gold equivalent of the dollar has been reduced, Mr. Cummings contended that an adverse decision would result in the payment of $1.69 for every dollar involved in gold-clause contracts.

He asserted, he asserted, his voice rising, "but back to chaos."

He told the court an adverse decision would result in chaos.

BUSINESS DEFENDS NRA PRICE-FIXING

2,000 Attend First of Series of Hearings Held To Shape New Policy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. (AP)—Businessmen today vigorously defended the price fixing and control at an NRA meeting whose attendance recalled the days of code making under Hugh S. Johnson.

The approximately 2,000 crowded into the department of commerce auditorium for the first of a series of hearings expected to shape NRA policy and legislation.

In the audience the businessmen were told that, unless industry could prove differently, the NRA would remove most price control from codes. S. Clay Williams, head of NRA's administrative board, declared the recovery organization would follow this course.

Other officials indicated distrust of price control devices.

The matter came back from the floor, where more than 100 business executives were given an opportunity to speak in a session that carried on tonight, what that price fixing was desirable. Some, however, lambasted the practice.

In a letter to Williams, Alfred Reeves, executive officer in charge of the automobile manufacturers' code, declared that "by unanimous vote" the directors of the Automobile Manufacturers' Association had opposed continuation of trade practice provisions in any code of fair competition where the direct or indirect objective is price fixing, price maintenance or production control," adding that "lower costs and lower prices increase volume and hence employment."

NRA's codes were "chiefly charters for the elimination rather than the improvement of competition," he declared. T. B. Grace, economist of R. H. Macy & Company, of New York, Irving C. Fox of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, said price control adherents sought price fixing no matter what their "pretensions."

Nevertheless, most of the businessmen speakers defended price controls, especially open.

Open prices mean the posting of prices with a central authority by individual companies in an industry. The companies agree to conform to their posted, or published price, for a certain specified time.

Two Get Long Terms For Ride-Rob Holdup

Hugh Clayton and Grady Pearson pleaded guilty Wednesday before Judge Lee W. Wyatt to the ride-rob holdup of T. B. Grace, of 619 Sheppard road, December 2 and received long chain gang sentences. Clayton was given 10 to 20 years and Pearson 7 to 15 years.

Grace was robbed of his automobile, a diamond ring, glasses and other property, according to officers, when two men stepped out from a crowd which was dispersing after a repair man had fixed a puncture for the victim on Bankhead avenue.

DEEN OFFERS BILL ASKING $500,000 FOR WAR ON WORM

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. (AP)—A concerted drive among members of Congress from the south to obtain federal aid in fighting the screw worm appeared today as a third bill to authorize funds for the purpose was introduced.

Representative Deen, democrat, Georgia, offered a measure seeking an appropriation of $500,000. Senator George, democrat, Georgia, previously asked for $200,000 in a senate bill, and Representative Green, democrat, Florida, sought $1,000,000 if the house.

The southerners stressed the immediate need of controlling the pest, which last year caused great damage to livestock and even attacked humans.

"I consider the screw worm the most serious menace to the farmers of the south," said Deen, "far greater than the boll weevil or the Mediterranean fruit fly."

In the summer and fall of 1934 I personally saw hundreds of animals, cattle and hogs, which died from the infestation. I personally saw one case where the worm infested a human being in my county, Bacon. Several persons were infected in my district last year."

Deen's bill, similar to those offered by George and Green except in amount, read:

"Be it hereby authorized to be appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of $500,000 to be expended by the secretary of agriculture for the eradication and control of the screw worm in Georgia, Florida and other southern states."

"The secretary of agriculture is authorized to secure the co-operation and assistance of the departments of agriculture and health in the eradication of the screw worm, fly is believed to have migrated the last few years from Mexico."

The state department of health Wednesday made public statistics showing that in addition to the infestation of thousands of head of cattle in the state, the worm had caused at least eight deaths.

Dr. D. L. Seckinger, epidemiologist for the state department of health, said the dead included one white man and five negroes.

Florida Referendum On Liquor Voided

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 9. (AP)—A Dade county referendum held November 6 to repeal liquor laws today was declared void by Circuit Judge Worth W. Trammell.

The court held the referendum invalid on the ground that it was held on the same date as the general state election, instead of after the results of that balloting had become known.

Judge Trammell's declaration was made to attorneys as he signed an order directing the clerk of the court to set aside the referendum.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Helton, a neighbor couple, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Borden, and a brother-in-law, Howard Helton, another brother-in-law, Carlos Helton, was wounded but survived.

A coroner's jury late today named Collett as the killer and attributed the wholesale slaughter to his desperation as a fugitive from justice. State police were hunting him on bank robbery and theft charges.

CottonPool Head Made
Morgenthau Assistant

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. (AP)—Oscar Johnston, of Scott, Miss., manager of the 1933 cotton producers pool, today was appointed assistant to Secretary Morgenthau of the treasury.

The appointment was made by arrangement between Morgenthau and Secretary Wallace, of the agriculture department.

Johnston will devote part of his time to the study of agricultural commodity credits. At the same time he will continue with the agriculture department as manager of the cotton pool.

The treasury appointment is for a period of three months.

8-Year Index to The Constitution
Valuable Part of State Library

The Georgia state library lists among its most highly prized and most valuable items a card index to The Atlanta Constitution for the last eight years, a system which provides the state with immediate access to all important Georgia news. Miss Ella May Thornton, the state librarian, revealed Wednesday.

Miss Thornton said that the card index was started in 1926 and "its value to the state cannot be measured."

"Many times it has been the only quick and sure approach to some important item needed by the governor, the courts or other state officials," she said. "Then, too, it is greatly used by colleges and universities as it is the only place in the state where an index to events is kept."

ENTRANCE OF U. S. IN WORLD COURT VOTED BY SOLONS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. (AP)—Backed by a 14-to-7 vote in its favor, the senate foreign relations committee, a resolution that would bring the United States into the World Court under strictly prescribed conditions was started today toward a long-sought senate decision.

The committee approved of American adherence "with the clear understanding" that the court "shall not over an objection by the United States, entertain any requests for an advisory opinion touching any dispute or question in which the United States has or claims an interest."

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, majority leader and ranking democrat on the committee, offered the resolution, evidently with administration approval. He said he would call it up in the senate "whenever I think the time is opportune."

The condition attached was the same language off he old fifth reservation the senate adopted in 1926 which led to strong opposition abroad and ultimate formulation of the Root protocol of American adherence.

Conflict of opinion immediately arose over whether other signatories would have to accept the committee-approved conditions before America joined the court.

The committee chairman, Pittman, democrat, Nevada, took the view that since the reservation amplified the text of the Root protocol, other nations would have to accept it either by implication or affirmation before America joined. If they protested, this country would remain outside the tribunal. While this appeared to be the prevailing view, some other members contended consent of other signatories would not be necessary.

Administration senators hinted that while other major powers refused to accept the reservation before, they probably would give implied consent now. Pittman said should the senate satisfy the president, other signatories would be notified of the conditions. A mere acknowledgment of the notice without any protest would be taken as implied acceptance, he added.

Sensors Johnson, republican, California, and Borah, republican, Idaho, in preparation of the old fifth reservation what they were strictly for, but they remained fundamentally opposed to American entry under any conditions.

The committee vote split through party lines. Those supporting the resolution, with protection against advisory opinion, were: Pittman, Robinson, Harrison, Wagner, Connally, Bachman, Black, Thomas, Utah; Van Nuys, Duffy, Pope, Buckley, democrats, and Capper, Vandenberg, republicans.

Opposing it were: Lewis and Murray, democrats; Borah, Johnson, La Follette, Cutting, republicans, and Shipstead, farmer-labor.

Kentuckian Slays 6,

BRODHEAD, Ky., Jan. 9. (AP)—Six persons were shot to death in the early morning foothills of this vicinity today as an event can be looked up in a minute," Miss Thornton said.

Miss Margaret M. Gibbs, an assistant to Miss Thornton, is in charge of the index.

"The Constitution is receiving a deserved recognition in having been chosen and we think that the library, too, merits appreciation for giving such a service," the librarian said in discussing the index.

Mrs. Hauptmann Impassive As 'Jafsie' Tells His Story

JOHN (JAFSIE) CONDON.

By MARY ELIZABETH PLUMMER. FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 9. (AP)—The defense will not name tomorrow the four persons it accuses of being the actual kidnappers of the Lindbergh baby, Edward J. Reilly, Hauptmann's chief counsel, said. He will name them later in the trial, he said.

Reilly was asked tonight whether the defense would name the four persons tomorrow as it promised "probably" to do, in an announcement last week-end. "Certainly not certainly not," was Reilly's reply. "When I said we would name them Thursday, I didn't mean this Thursday. I meant any Thursday."

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 9. (AP)—Dr. John F. Condon, "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh kidnapping case, opened up new pages of that fantastic tragedy today with a witness stand story that three branded Bruno Richard Hauptmann as "John," the cemetery ransom taker.

Firm, almost eager, in his account, the 74-year-old former Bronx teacher told his direct story for two and a half hours at Hauptmann's murder trial and then turned on defense inquisitors with vigor.

Again, the childing schoolmaster, he lectured Edward J. Reilly, chief defense counsel, until the portly lawyer protested he could "take it." At one point his testimony, on cross-examination, provoked a defense demand for a mistrial. The motion, directly the result of an interruption by Attorney-General David T. Welles, was quickly by Justice Thomas W. Trenchard.

No Doubt in Voice. There was no doubt in the voice of the tall, white-haired scholar as he shook a pedantic finger and repeated: "John" is Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

Nor did his story alter as he told of the series cemetery trysts that finally led him to put $50,000 in the hands of the "John"—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's ransom for the baby already slain.

Not even at the height of Reilly's relentless questions, pointed patent by at the question of Condon's own good faith in the case, did he waver. "Not for me, not for me," he replied to the suggestion that he rest for a few minutes. "Let him go right on all night."

Tomorrow Dr. Condon faces more searching queries from the carpenter's defender, on Reilly's own promise that the cross-examination will consume a day and a half.

Tells Story in Detail. In a story detail today "Jafsie" told his story of the arrangements for the ransom; of his first tryst with "John" in Woodlawn cemetery, the Bronx, soon after the kidnapping; how he arranged to have the child's sleeping suit sent to him as proof that "John's" supposed suppliers had the baby.

Then he carried the moving narrative to Raymond's cemetery, also in the Bronx, where on the night of April 2, 1932, he handed "John" the wooden box containing the ransom. He described the way "John" ac-

TENSENESS GRIPS SAAR TERRITORY

Campaign Marked by Clashes Between Nazis and Anti-Nazis.

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A new clash between nazis and anti-nazis, though quickly quelled by alert police, served again today to emphasize the tense atmosphere gripping the Saar as Sunday's plebiscite drew nearer.

Overwhelming forces of police and the landjaeger (gendarmes) pitched in to rout the contending factions, battling on Waterloo street with sticks, fists and boots, before the riot could get well under way.

A detachment of advocates of the status quo—retention of League of Nations government for the basin—started the trouble, raiding Waterloo street, where the (nazi) German front has headquarters, and scattering propaganda newspapers on the sidewalks and in front yards. Several hundred nazis promptly appeared ready to do battle, while persons popping their heads out of windows cheered them.

Major Arthur Hennessey, Saar police chief, personally headed detachments of police and landjaeger that rushed up to the scene in lorries. No arrests were made, it was announced, but both sides claimed wounded.

A minor victory for communists in one of the numerous non-violent skirmishes between the conflicting sides was registered, meanwhile, as nazis officials decided to postpone temporarily ousting them from the building, they occupy in Saarbruecken.

The nazi-controlled municipal government purchased the building in order to oust the communists, but as the nazis put it today, "the followers of Moscow will have to vacate the territory within a few days anyway."

That explanation reflected the prevailing belief that the Saar, when it goes to the closely guarded polls Sunday, will vote overwhelmingly for reunion with Adolf Hitler's reich.

Negro Vendor Suspected of Supplying Saws to Ralph Jones, Escaped.

G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee of council, Wednesday called a meeting of the committee for 7:30 o'clock Friday night, at which time the escape from the new city jail Monday of Ralph Jones, Illinois life-terminer, will be thoroughly investigated.

A negro vendor was named Wednesday as the person who supplied Jones with the saw blades with which he effected his escape by sawing the bars in the window of his cell, and formal charges were lodged against five police officials by Chief T. O. Sturdivant after he and his secretary, O. H. Pendley, had conducted an investigation of the escape.

George Peck, negro vendor of soft drinks and sandwiches in the city jail, was named by O. H. Pendley, secretary to Chief of Police Sturdivant. It is believed by Pendley that the escape, as the person who, in all probability, supplied Jones with the saws which enabled him to gain his freedom. Peck was seen by Sturdivant and Pendley in the jail on Monday, when he was given $20, which he secreted in his shoe. It is believed by Pendley that the escape, as the person who, in all probability, supplied Jones with the saws which enabled him to gain his freedom.

The second escape plot was revealed when jail officials discovered what was a bar in the cell of George Henry, 45-year-old burglar suspect, on the same tier as that from which Jones escaped. Henry was arrested after being submitted to an exhaustive search, as was the cell, but no saw blades found. The burglary suspect denied he had attempted to saw the bars.

Both Henry and James Morgan, who were arrested after a quantity of burglary tools had been found in their possession, are being held in the writs of habeas corpus hearings on which are scheduled to take place before Judge G. H. Howard in Fulton superior court this morning.

Matthews, DeKalb county commissioner, represented Atlanta at the exercises, while Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory University, gave the invocation.

Newman Man Made Director of Citizens & Southern Bank

L. H. PARRIS.

FRANKLIN NASH.

R. H. Freeman, of Newman, was made a director of the Citizens & Southern National bank at the annual meeting of stockholders held in Savannah Tuesday. It was announced in Atlanta Wednesday. The directors of the bank met immediately following the stockholders' gathering.

L. H. Parris, formerly assistant cashier and assistant trust officer in Atlanta, was elected vice president and trust officer, while Franklin Nash, also of the Atlanta office, was made assistant trust officer.

William Murphy, president of the bank, in his report to stockholders, said the program of development in 1934 was "completely satisfactory in the light of general economic conditions."

He stated that deposits during the year increased nearly $5,000,000 and that a large number of new customers were added to the bank during the year, with the total number of Georgians now served by this institution 120,000, or one for every 24 population, men, women and children, in the state. In one office alone, he said, more than 4,000 new savings accounts were opened, indicating greatly improved business conditions among the people as a whole.

"One of the most marked characteristics of the bank operations during the year," Mr. Murphy said, "was evidence of the efforts of the C. & S. to co-operate with administrative plans and policies wherever possible. Approximately $12,000,000 has been loaned on cotton producers' notes, probably the largest holding of any bank in the southeast."

"The Citizens & Southern was the first bank in Georgia to advertise its division of the bank, which had been in operation since 1913, was ordered held today on a charge of involuntary manslaughter by a coroner's jury that investigated the death of Mrs. Bonnie Lee Josey, 27, of Macon.

Coroner L. H. Chapman said Mrs. Josey died almost instantly when an automobile in which she was riding with the man booked as Johnson over-turned on a Macon street early this morning. The coroner said the man he named Johnson was driving the car, was seriously hurt, and was in a Macon hospital tonight.

The other occupants of the car were less seriously injured.

Court Rules Against Damages In U. S. Sinking of 'I'm Alone'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The ghost of the rum runner, I'm Alone, was laid today by a final judicial ruling that Canada should receive an apology and the crew $25,000, but that the United States could cross off the Canadian demand for $386,803 in damages.

The American-Canadian judicial commission, bringing one of prohibition's most spectacular episodes nearer conclusion, ruled that the vessel had been wrongfully sunk. But because of the nature of its use, the decision said, there should be no compensation to its owner for the loss which included about 2,400 cases of liquor.

The commissioners—Justice Willis Van Devanter, of the United States supreme court, and Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff, of the Canadian supreme court—decided the captain and crew were not parties to the smuggling conspiracy and hence were entitled to "material amends."

Canada had asked for damages of nearly $400,000 for the sinking which took place in the Gulf of Mexico March 22, 1928, after more than an hour of shelling by the coast guard cutter Dexter.

Recent hearings here were devoted to a determination of ownership. Canada claimed the schooner was of bona fide Canadian registry but the United States contended its operations were run by a New York running syndicate.

The commission today declared that although it was a British ship of Canadian registry, it "was de-facto owned, controlled, and at critical times managed, and her movements directed and her cargo dealt with and disposed of, by a group of persons acting in concert who were entirely, or nearly so, citizens of the United States."

George J. Harris, of Montreal, testified at the hearing that he owned the boat through control of the Eugene Nreaser Shipping Company, Ltd., of Nova Scotia.

Other evidence came from Captain John T. Randall, a British naval hero, who embarked on the expedition with an open boat, full of crew and other accoutrements of a socialite.

Randall declared he had been commercially ostracized since the incident and that he had been ill for nine months because of it.

The commission recommended he be given $7,908. Other suggested awards for the seamen were: Amanda Main-guy, whose husband, Leon, was drowned in the disaster, $10,185; for the representatives of John Williams, deceased, $1,250.50; for the representatives of Williams Wordsworth, deceased, $807; Jens Jensen, $1,098; James Barrett, $1,032; Eddie Young, $999; Chesley Hobbs, $1,323; Edward Fouchard, $905.

State department officials today said they had no funds for payment of such awards and that a congressional appropriation would be necessary.

U. S. SEEKS WRITS ON FILM PRACTICES

Federal Agents at St. Louis Charge Anti-Trust Act Violations.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Post-Dispatch says today criminal indictments charging violation of the Sherman anti-trust law are being sought by the department of justice from a federal grand jury here which is investigating alleged monopolistic practices involving virtually the entire moving picture industry of the United States.

The jury, in session for three days, has subpoenaed approximately 100 film corporations, executives and other representatives.

Department of justice officials conducting the inquiry, among them former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, have declined to explain the exact nature of the investigation.

The Post-Dispatch, however, says the inquiry "is the outgrowth of repeated complaints to the department of justice and the federal trade commission by independent exhibitors in cities throughout the country."

The independent exhibitors have charged, the newspaper says, that "gentlemen's agreements" among the producers who also control chains of theaters have prevented them obtaining desirable picture.

The jury quiz followed a complaint made by Allen L. Snyder, operator of the Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central theaters here, that "gentlemen's agreements" among the producers who also control chains of theaters have prevented them obtaining desirable picture.

Among film executives subpoenaed to testify are Joseph Bernhardt, general manager, and M. A. Silver, western manager, of Warner Brothers, eastern and Canadian sales manager for Warner Brothers; Sam Denbow Jr., former vice president of Paramount-Public Corporation; Neil Agnew, general sales manager for Paramount; Louis Arat, assistant sales manager for Columbia Pictures; Jules Levy, general sales manager for R-K-O; W. J. Kupper, western manager for Fox; and Harry Arthur, vice president of Fanchon and Marco.

Violation of the Sherman anti-trust law is a misdemeanor punishable by a jail sentence of one year and $5,000 fine.

Will Rogers and Temple Macon's Favorite Stars

MACON, Ga., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Macon's two favorite movie stars, Will Rogers and Shirley Temple, the gum-chewing comedian's pictures are the only ones which always can be counted upon as "hold-overs" local theater managers report, but young Miss Temple's popularity has become so great that her productions are being booked for extended runs.

GREED IS CHARGED TO HOLDING FIRMS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Greed and "personal ambition" were reported today by the federal trade commission to have been the "major motives" behind the giant power combinations which resulted in the Insull empire and others similar in size.

Holding company domination of the industry increased in the post-war years, the commission said, until 16 large holding companies controlled over three-fourths of the privately owned industry in 1929 to 1932.

The united corporation group in which J. P. Morgan & Company is interested, was the largest of these, the commission said, with control of companies producing 19.8 per cent of the total electric energy generated.

The electric bond and share group was next with 13.6 per cent, and Insull interests third with 11.1 per cent.

The desire to take advantage of technical improvements aided in bringing about the consolidations, the commission reported, and the companies would co-operate with other utilities.

"Unquestionably," the report continued, "as developed later, the desire for commercial expansion, greed and personal ambition to become dominating factors in the industry were major motives in impelling promotional desires and schemes for the development of large combinations of utilities."

The report today was one of a series in the senate-directed, six-year investigation of the nation's public utilities.

Officials have predicted that the final report would recommend limiting the size and power of utility combinations, and perhaps putting them under federal license.

INJUNCTION HALTS PWA POWER LOANS

14 Alabama Cities Seeking Own Plants Forbidden to Negotiate.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Fourteen north Alabama municipalities today were enjoined from negotiating loans with the public works administration to construct their own electric distribution systems, shortly after mayors of three of them had announced receipt of signed contracts for loans totaling nearly $800,000.

The injunction was issued by Judge W. G. Grubb in United States district court here on the application of Forney Johnston, attorney for a group of preferred stockholders of the Alabama Power Co., and prohibits negotiating loans for construction of electric distribution systems.

The three signed loan contracts were received by the mayors of Sheffield, Tusculum and Florence in the morning mail from Washington and under the contracts, $750,000, 70 per cent loan and the remainder grants, would be immediately available.

The injunction granted by Judge Grubb, however, restrains them from accepting the money, or expending it for the purpose of building electric distribution systems.

Announcement of the temporary order on which Judge Grubb said he would hear motions to dissolve it at any time, brought an immediate statement from the mayors of Florence, Tusculum, and Sheffield that they would co-operate with other municipalities, the Tennessee Valley Authority and the public works administration in seeking dissolution of the order.

Agreements removing old Italian-French irritants stirred new hopes Wednesday that the problem of disarmament might again be attacked with some hope of success.

As Italy made ready formally to take possession of the African provinces France ceded her and Ethiopia sought was typically to learn the implications of those concessions, Europe's diplomats converged on Geneva again to study the Yugoslav-Hungarian dispute, search for the East-plebiscite and, perhaps, discuss disarmament.

ROME — Reports Emilio Mussolini ordered General Emilio D'Amico, his minister of colonies, to sail for Africa to supervise incorporation of the new territories into Libya and Eritrea, as the possibility was advanced that France and Italy might reopen negotiations with Germany for an agreement on disarmament.

LONDON — Although official comment was withheld pending receipt of the text of the Franco-Italian pact, the official impression in London was one of enthusiasm, with desire evidenced of retaining consideration of the disarmament problem. A suggestion that Italy's acquisitions fronting the southern end of the Red sea might provide her with fresh material in future negotiations with Great Britain was discounted.

PARIS — Officials said Italy's territorial gains were important in the "moral" rather than the economic or military sense, termed "fantastic" the idea that Mussolini might fortify his new land on the Red sea.

Bible Stolen Christmas Is Found in Pawnshop

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 9.—(AP)—A pulpit-size Bible, which was stolen from the First Baptist church of Savannah before Christmas, has been recovered in a local pawnshop, where it brought $3, Detective Sergeant E. A. Fitzgerald said today.

ATLANTAN TO PRESIDE AT CHICAGO BANQUET

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Clarence Haverly, Atlanta, vice president and treasurer of the south-wide group of Haverly furniture stores, including two in Atlanta, will preside as toastmaster at the annual banquet of the National Retail Furniture Association Thursday night in the dining room of the Furniture Club here.

Officials of the association termed this meeting one of the most important in the history of the industry, many changes necessitated by the NRA and other legislation will be discussed. Mr. Haverly's selection to preside at this meeting is a high compliment not only to himself but to the section which he represents.

Mr. Haverly has been active in furniture circles for a number of years and has taken a leading part in all important steps taken by the association for the betterment of the industry. At the preliminary hearings preceding the adoption of the NRA code, Mr. Haverly represented southern retailers at the request of President Roosevelt and other government leaders.

William Akers and L. A. Witherspoon, vice presidents of the Haverly company, and W. H. Slater, vice president of the Atlanta Music Club, will accompany Mr. Haverly to Chicago and will attend both the banquet and meeting Thursday.

The Curtis String Quartet will give a concert at the Woman's Club auditorium next Tuesday evening, as a second feature of the Atlanta Music Club's Artist Series.

This engagement was postponed from last October on account of illness of one of the members who has now entirely recovered.

The Curtis quartet is sponsored by the Curtis Institute of Music of Philadelphia, from which institution the quartet received its name and is composed of Jascha Brodsky and Benjamin Sharipl, violins; Max Aronoff, viola, and Orlando Cole, violoncello. They are making their southern tour under the direction of the Southern Musical Bureau.

With the growing appreciation of chamber music throughout the country, much attention has been focused on this quartet, which is really the successor to the old Flonzaley quartet. During the past several seasons they have toured extensively, meeting with enthusiastic success everywhere.

Those who do not hold season tickets for the Music Club's series can secure single admissions for this concert by applying to Mrs. Harold McKensie, president, 680 Club drive, or at the box office of the Woman's Club on Tuesday evening.

NEW PROVISIONS MADE AFFECTING NRA WAGES

Professional persons engaged in the retail trade, whose working hours exceed the maximum under code provisions, must receive minimum wages, which range from $25 to $35 a week, depending upon population of the town in which they work, according to a recent ruling of the national recovery board.

In announcing the new provision, W. R. Mitchell, regional and state NRA director, said that this would affect the wages of several thousand doctors, dentists, nurses, architects, training directors, artists, research technicians, mechanical engineers and others in Georgia. This new amendment places professional persons on the same basis as executives working unlimited hours. For Atlanta the retail code provides a minimum weekly pay of $27.

GERMAN ACCUSED BY DR. CONDON

"Jafie" Thrice Identifies Hauptmann as He Tells Story.

cepted the money box; his voice and actions, and the later fruitless search with Colonel Lindbergh along the New England coast in quest of the "Road Nelly" where "John" had said the baby would be found alive and well.

There were moments in his testimony when the comic element entered and even Colonel Lindbergh smiled. But most of the time as the tragic tale came from the lips of the big, retired teacher there was a hush over the courtroom where Hauptmann stands trial before a jury of eight men and four women.

Thrice Accuses Bruno.

In all, Dr. Condon named Hauptmann three times as "John." And in his direct examination by Attorney-General Wilentz he revealed publicly for the first time that he had seen "John" last August walking in the Bronx.

"One evening at the corner of Williamsbridge road and Pelham parkway," Dr. Condon said, "I saw him walking over in the direction of what I found to be his home after I was in a bus going in the opposite direction, but I did not pursue him, owing to the fact that he got into woods which is there. You have to see that to understand what I mean."

Wilentz led Dr. Condon quickly to the payment of the ransom as he started his story.

"Did you give some money in a box that night?" Wilentz asked when the testimony reached the point of the letter to St. Raymond's cemetery.

"I did."

Q. And who did you give that money to?

A. "John," Dr. Condon said.

Q. Who is "John?"

The shaggy head of the teacher went down. Over his ruddy face came a fleeting change of expression, a kind of contemptuous smile. Then his head came up with a sudden jerk, he looked at Wilentz and shaking his finger vigorously, he said:

"John is Bruno Richard Hauptmann."

Hauptmann Pauses.

Colonel Lindbergh had his eyes fixed on the teacher as he turned to gaze reprovingly at Hauptmann. The defendant straightened, turned pale, then flushed.

"Jafie's" amazing vigor, his torrents of detail as he told his story, his odd insistence on precise definitions, his gestures, voice and mannerisms caused ripples of comment in the court, and occasional explosive laughter, which Justice Trenchard quickly suppressed.

Reilly hammered away at Dr. Condon's identification of Hauptmann.

"When Bruno Richard Hauptmann was on trial for extradition into the three months ago, in October, in the Bronx, and you, with the secret locked in your heart—were not called, were you?" the defense chief demanded.

"Only by the jury—under—under—"

Q. I am talking about that proceeding—were you called?

A. No.

Q. And that proceeding was after you saw Bruno Richard Hauptmann in Greenwich street and Centre street (New York police headquarters)?

A. To the best of my recollection, yes.

Tense Moment.

One tense point of the cross-examination came when Reilly demanded to know if "Jafie" had signed for a book on symbols at the New York public library, shortly before the kidnapping of March 1, 1932.

Wilentz objected strenuously and then promised to produce the book, although, he said, it had nothing to do with the case.

Cryptic, circular symbols appeared on the ransom notes sent to Condon and the Lindberghs.

Reilly finally had the doctor write "John Francis Condon" on a pad after "Jafie" had protested testily that "John Condon is not my name."

Dr. Condon also told Reilly that he first entered the case to rescue from suspicion "Arthur Johnson," whom he regarded as innocent.

Apparently he referred to Henry (Red) Johnson, the sailor friend of Betty Gow, Lindbergh nurse. Johnson was questioned for a time in connection with the kidnapping investigation and later was deported to his native Norway.

Demand for Juror's Removal.

Reilly demanded the withdrawal of a juror and a mistrial after Wilentz interrupted Reilly's examination of Dr. Condon on a conversation between the teacher held with a Taunton, Mass., druggist, offered to present to the court "an unsolicited letter" in explanation of Condon's visit.

Dr. Condon had denied he ever told a druggist that "John" was not Hauptmann.

"Now I object to this. I object to it," Reilly protested. "If it keeps on, I will make a motion for the withdrawal of a juror."

Wilentz offered to withdraw the offer.

"Do it anyway," broke in C. Lloyd Fisher, associate defense counsel. "Make the motion anyway."

"I move now for the withdrawal of a juror for this production of this paper and the statement of the attorney-general, and the declaration, and that we may have a mistrial. I will ask Mr. Pope (Frederick A. Pope, another associate) to argue the question of law."

Pope Takes Floor.

"I don't think it needs any argument, your honor," said Pope. "I think the question of the announcement of the attorney-general was so manifestly out of order, unfair and prejudicial to the rights of this defendant that it requires no argument."

The motion was denied, but Justice Trenchard admonished the jurors to pay no attention to what Wilentz had said about the letter.

Dr. Condon testified he was 74 years old last June 1, and during those 74 years he had lived "in the most beautiful borough in the world—the Bronx. He is called 'doctor' because he did not follow the doctor and the flying school to protect them and why he did not take a more important role in the proceedings."

At Reilly, former pugilist and friend of Dr. Condon, often referred to as the teacher on most of his missions in the ransom negotiations, was the day's first witness.

Reilly, a brawny figure on the stand, started his testimony by telling of the night of April 2, 1932, when the ransom was paid.

He was at Jafie's Bronx home, he related, together with Colonel Lindbergh, Colonel Breckinridge, Ralph Hacker, Condon's son-in-law, Mrs. Condon and Mrs. Hacker.

He was asked if he drove the car to the ransom payment spot.

"Colonel Lindbergh drove the car," he said, explaining, "I suggested they use my car."

The $400 radio taken from Hauptmann's Bronx home and the chest of carpenter's tools found in his garage were in the courthouse for use as exhibits.

The state has announced that a woman acquaintance of Hauptmann's once saw a large sheet of bills in the radio.

The state says it will link the tools to a kidnapping attempt.

Directed by Wilentz, Reilly told of the preparation of the $70,000 ransom money in the box ordered by the kidnaper.

"I was there when it was packed. I helped bring it up that afternoon."

from the banker's home," he detailed, explaining the money was brought to Condon in two packages, one of $50,000 and one of $20,000.

"That was the afternoon of the night of the final payoff."

Concludes Examination.

Wilentz concluded direct examination of Reich with a short series of questions regarding the ransom payment.

Q. You saw the $70,000?

A. Yes, it was packed in a wooden box.

Q. And you were present?

A. Yes, I was there when he and Colonel Lindbergh left to pay out the money.

Q. Who was there?

A. Besides myself, Mrs. Condon, Colonel Breckinridge and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hacker (Mrs. Hacker is Dr. Condon's daughter).

Wilentz then turned the witness over to Reilly for examination.

"Are you Dr. Condon's bodyguard?" Reilly began.

"No, I just go with him."

The large, open-faced pugilist answered the question easily.

Condon Studies Reilly.

Dr. Condon, studying Reilly closely, peered at him for a moment.

Q. Have you any means of income other than as a referee?

A. I own some real estate.

Reilly was told by the witness that Condon sometimes came to City Island.

"That's where I live," Reich explained.

Reilly said he did not remember Dr. Condon coming to City Island during ransom negotiations in March, 1932.

Swings to Ransom Payment.

Reilly swung abruptly to the matter of the ransom payment.

"At what suggestion was the $70,000 brought to Dr. Condon's home?"

"Anything that was done at the time was done with the consent of Colonel Lindbergh, Colonel Breckinridge and Dr. Condon."

"Did you hear Dr. Condon suggest it went to the bank to have the money in the Bronx?"

"No."

"Who knew the money was to be in the Bronx that night?"

Colonel Breckinridge, Colonel Breckinridge, Dr. Condon, and myself."

"So after the money was there in the Bronx, there comes the instruction to pay the money in 30 minutes?"

"Yes."

Reilly said the police knew the pay off was to be made but did not know at what place.

Reilly pressed Reich to explain why he did not follow the doctor and the flying school to protect them and why he did not take a more important role in the proceedings.

"Nothing set for while," said the doctor, noting that a man walked down the street in the meanwhile.

He went back to the car for a few minutes.

Then the kidnaper signaled him, he said.

"I saw a handkerchief being waved."

Describes Meeting.

Condon described the first time he met the ransom collector.

"Who is the man who spoke to you between the gates of the cemetery?"

Wilentz asked.

"John."

"And who is John?"

"Bruno Richard Hauptmann."

Q. And then what happened?

A. Well, he kept waving the handkerchief through the bars of the gate.

A. Then I went and said "I know you."

Alarmed by a rustle in the cemetery, Condon said he was in a hurry to get away.

"Turner fashion," Condon related.

"I received this letter by messenger at my front door."

"That was the Saturday after the advertisement appeared."

He said he went to Mr. Rosenheim's place and called its contents to a gentleman at the other end of the wire in Hopedale, New Jersey.

"And," he continued under questioning, "then I went to the home of Colonel Lindbergh at Hopedale."

Colonel Lindbergh said he did not use the telephone in his own home to call Colonel Lindbergh, because:

"I never use my telephone for anything that will annoy my family."

Condon said that on the night he stayed at Lindbergh's Hopedale home, "I slept in the baby's nursery."

He said it melodramatically, with a little gesture of the hands and a quiver in his voice.

Wilentz repeated "so you slept in the nursery?"

Dr. Condon was advised to drive "100 feet beyond the last station" on the Jerome avenue subway line, where the last note was found.

It read:

"Dear sir: We trust you but we will note in your hand it is to be done. We will be waiting at the police or secret service is watching you."

"Follow this instruction, take a car and drive to the last subway station from Jerome Ave. line, 100 feet from the last station on the left side is a empty frankfurter stand with a big open space around it. You will find a place in the center of the porch underneath a stone. This notice will tell you where to find us."

Act accordingly.

"Nothing set for while," said the doctor, noting that a man walked down the street in the meanwhile.

He went back to the car for a few minutes.

Then the kidnaper signaled him, he said.

"I saw a handkerchief being waved."

"Turner fashion," Condon related.

John ran, saying, "cops" were there, he said.

As "John" fled into Van Courtlandt park, Jafie dramatically continued:

"I said, 'Hey, come back here! Don't be cowardly. Here I am, a poor school teacher, and your leaving me here to be drilled.'"

Caught Up With "John."

Jafie said he caught up with John and sat down with him on a park bench.

Condon described the cemetery scene dramatically.

"He told me, 'It's too dangerous. It's 20 years or burn.'"

"Then he asked me 'would I burn if he 8 hours you get the money from the boy on the place you find two ladies. They are innocent.'"

"If it is to late we put it in the New York Times Saturday morning. Put it in New York morning."

Put it in New York morning."

Identifies Advertisement.

The retired teacher identified the advertisement he placed in the paper, following his receipt of that note.

"I accept. Money is ready," said the advertisement which appeared April 2.

It was on that day that the ransom money was brought to Condon's Bronx home, Jafie said.

was right, and he said it was all right.

"Then I went ahead and did what the notes said for me to do."

He said he went to the place where evidence Jafie stated had at Hauptmann from under his shaggy brows.

Wilentz asked carefully read this note to the attentive jury, straining the head as he listened.

The note follows:

"Dear sir: You and Mr. Lindbergh know our program. If you don't accept we will wait until you agree with our deal. We know you have to come to us anyway. But why should Mrs. and Mr. Lindbergh suffer longer as necessary. We will not communicate with you or Mr. Lindbergh until you write so in the paper."

"We will tell you again: this kidnapping case was prepared for a year already so the police won't have any leads to find us or the child. You see that little package to Mr. Lindbergh it contains the sleeping bag from the baby. 'The baby is well.'"

"Jafie" put on his glasses to scrutinize the note.

He peered at it long, his head moving and scanning line after line.

He rubbed his chin frequently. It was minutes before he looked up.

"Then he said, 'Yes sir, that is the letter I received at my home.'"

Letting him receive the letter, Wilentz asked Condon if he had inserted another ad in the papers as the result of this latest note from John.

"No," he said, the doctor with a nod of his head.

Reilly, always ruddy of face, was a beet-like crimson.

"He said, 'Give me the money.'"

"I said, 'Not 'til you give me a receipt—beg pardon—a note, saying we'll get the baby.'"

Colonel Lindbergh is not so rich. Why don't you be decent to him?"

Well, I suppose if we can't get 70,000 dollars in 10 minutes I'll get the note and come back."

He told how he returned to Colonel Lindbergh, and got the box containing the $50,000. Lindbergh first removing the additional $20,000 which had been brought along.

Returned to Rendezvous.

He returned to the rendezvous at the hedge.

Q. What happened then?

"I was crouched down under the hedge. I said, 'Come on, stand up like a man, leave the money. I said come on give me the note.'"

He put his hand in a coat pocket. I said look down on him as he was crouching there, and I said, 'Give me the note.'"

Jafie then described how he extended the money to "John" on his left arm in the box.

"I took the note from his left hand and he took the money with his right."

Jafie said he started to depart to his home, but he was stopped by "John."

"Wait," John cried, Jafie testified.

"John" then took the money out of the box to make sure it was "all right," he explained.

Tells of Ransom Payment.

Condon told of the ransom payment.

"When he said 'Good night,' and I said 'Good night, John.'"

Wilentz then asked him "who is John?"

"He is Rudolf—or rather Bruno Richard Hauptmann."

After Condon's identification of Hauptmann for the third time, the boat was ready to start.

It was:

"The boy is on board Nelly. It is a small boat in the harbor. Two persons are on the boat. They are innocent. You will find the boat between Hornebeck beach and Gay Head."

He said that Colonel Lindbergh and his attorney, Colonel Breckinridge, were present when the note was read.

He said the three of them started on the hunt.

Q. Where did you go?

A. Down to Seventy-third street, near Central Park west.

It was the late Senator Morrow's library.

Reilly asked where the boat Nelly was.

conscious agreement at times.

"I showed him (Colonel Lindbergh) the note," related Jafie, describing his actions after getting the note at the greenhouse.

"I then walked across the street following the directions of the note."

"I then walked along the east side of Tremont avenue past the entrance of the gate of the cemetery."

Hailed by "John."

He said he saw no one and was retreating called steps to report to the colonel when he heard himself hailed in a loud voice.

"Hey, doctor. Over here!"

Dr. Condon lengthened the "o" and rolled the "r" in doctor to give it a slight foreign accent.

"Then I walked back toward the voice which seemed to come from a mound in St. Raymond's cemetery."

"The voice was very dark. But I stood on the edge of the street lamp," he continued.

"There was a hedge fence about five feet tall," he said, describing the spot where he came to the note.

Q. Is that a continuation of the cemetery?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How far did you go?

A. I went about 10 feet, and there again I heard the same voice as I heard when I was up on the corner when he called, 'Hey, Doctor.'

Related Conversation.

A. He said, 'Have you got the money?' the same as he said the night I met him at Woodlawn cemetery."

"I said, 'Colonel Lindbergh has it.'"

Condon continued.

"He said, 'Give me the money.'"

Q. What happened then?

"I was crouched down under the hedge. I said, 'Come on, stand up like a man, leave the money. I said come on give me the note.'"

He put his hand in a coat pocket. I said look down on him as he was crouching there, and I said, 'Give me the note.'"

Jafie then described how he extended the money to "John" on his left arm in the box.

"I took the note from his left hand and he took the money with his right."

Jafie said he started to depart to his home, but he was stopped by "John."

"Wait," John cried, Jafie testified.

"John" then took the money out of the box to make sure it was "all right," he explained.

Tells of Ransom Payment.

Condon told of the ransom payment.

"When he said 'Good night,' and I said 'Good night, John.'"

Wilentz then asked him "who is John?"

"He is Rudolf—or rather Bruno Richard Hauptmann."

After Condon's identification of Hauptmann for the third time, the boat was ready to start.

It was:

"The boy is on board Nelly. It is a small boat in the harbor. Two persons are on the boat. They are innocent. You will find the boat between Hornebeck beach and Gay Head."

He said that Colonel Lindbergh and his attorney, Colonel Breckinridge, were present when the note was read.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO C. A. WALLACE, 65

Retired Piano Salesman
Found Dead at Home in College Park.

C. A. Wallace, 65, retired piano salesman, found dead early Wednesday morning in his room at the home of his sister, Mrs. E. S. Cheney, 322 West Cambridge avenue, College Park, came to his death as the result of a heart attack, a coroner's jury ruled Wednesday.

A resident of Atlanta for nearly 30 years, prior to moving to College Park a few months ago, Mr. Wallace, until his retirement several years ago, had for 15 years been a salesman with the Ludden & Bates Piano Company and previous to that had been connected with other piano companies, including the Cable and Kimball organizations.

He was a member of the Christian Science church and of the Lebanon Masonic lodge.

Besides his sister, he is survived by his wife and a son, D. H. Wallace, of College Park.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon at the chapel of A. C. Hemperly & Sons, and burial will be in Warrenton, Ga., his birthplace.

County Shift Sought In Fulton's District

Realignment of the counties of the 35th Georgia senatorial district, of which Fulton county is a part, to allow Fulton county a senator in every session of the Georgia assembly was being championed Wednesday.

The move, if successful, would obviate the necessity of a constitutional amendment. It will be offered in the senate by Senator G. Everett Millikan, of the 35th district, and will have the support of Fulton and DeKalb representatives in the house. It was reported Wednesday.

The 35th district is now comprised of Fulton, Clayton and Henry counties. The plan is to shift Fayette county from the 26th district, now composed of Fayette, Butts and Spalding counties, to the 35th district, which is composed of Coweta and Meriwether counties. Thus, under the new arrangement proposed, the 26th district would be composed of Fayette, Coweta and Meriwether counties.

Clayton and Henry counties then would be added to the 26th district, composed under the proposed new alignment of Clayton, Henry, Butts and Spalding counties.

Gray Is Re-elected Airport Manager

Jack Gray, for the past six years probably the most ardent aviation enthusiast in the southeast, as manager of Candler field, Atlanta's airport, Wednesday was installed for another four-year term as head of the field.

It took the 1935 aviation committee all of five minutes to re-elect him unanimously, but those few minutes were spent in a series of laudations for his fine service and his good work.

Under his sponsorship Atlanta, Fulton county and the federal government has spent more than $500,000 in grading and improving the field, bought from the Candler estate at a cost of $94,000.

Candler field now is designated as the southern cross-roads of aviation. The city has erected an administration building at a cost of $41,000 and there have been numerous other improvements.

It is equipped for night landing and is one of the most modernly equipped fields in the south.

'FREEDOM OF THE SHEES' TICKET DEMAND HEAVY

People who plan to see "Freedom of the Shees," stage comedy to be presented at the Fox theater next Tuesday, were advised on Wednesday by W. D. Y. Hopkins, distributor for Norge refrigerators, to secure their complimentary tickets as soon as possible.

These tickets are now available at Norge dealers and at Rogers grocery stores. Only a limited number have been printed and when the present supplies at the different stores are exhausted it will be difficult to obtain any others, Mr. Hopkins said. Heavy demand for the free tickets is reported from all stores.

James A. Seeling is author of the comedy, "Freedom of the Shees," a five act stage play inspired by revolutionary changes in home life brought by modern conveniences. Blackouts and flashbacks between acts add hilarity to the performance, it is said.

The play will be offered at the one performance only, at 10 o'clock Thursday morning at the Fox. It runs for a little more than one hour.

COPY OF "LIBERATOR" IS GIVEN ATLANTA U.

The Atlanta University library has just received as a gift from Oswald Garrison Villard a copy of the Liberator of May 27, 1842. Mr. Villard is a grandson of the great abolitionist, William Lloyd Garrison. Garrison's importance as a dominating figure in starting the campaign against slavery is conceded by historians.

The Liberator, the mouthpiece of the abolition movement and of the more intelligent negroes, was first published on January 1, 1831. It was voluntarily discontinued by Garrison in 1863.

ATLANTA, GA., JAN. 10, 1935.

OUR REHABILITATION BANKS

The end of the year marked the practical completion of the rehabilitation of the national banking system, with only 5 of the 1,417 banks that went under the supervision of the comptroller following the bank holidays in 1933 remaining in the care of the government.

A concise picture of the tremendous task encompassed in the rescue of more than a thousand national banks from disaster, and their re-establishment, sale or permanent closing, is given in the following excerpt from a treasury department statement:

"With the close of business on December 31, 1934, 1,088 unlicensed banks under the supervision of the comptroller had been reorganized under old or new charters or sold to other national banks, and these had deposits aggregating $1,802,000,000, with deposits of $1,204,000,000, had quit or left the system, and 294, with deposits of $152,040,000, had been disapproved for reorganization and placed in receivership. This brought the number of banks which had been disposed of to 1,412, with deposits of $1,065,338,000, and left only five unlicensed national banks, with deposits of $6,622,000, as compared with deposits of $1,071,960,000 involved in 1,417 unlicensed banks at the end of the banking holidays.

The world has never known so tremendous a refinancing and rehabilitation program as is represented in the settlement of the affairs of these banks under the supervision of the American government. That it should have been safely accomplished during a period of great economic upset, and with widespread benefit to the entire banking system of the country, makes it all the more remarkable.

From March, 1933, when enabling legislation was enacted by congress, 1,586 other national banks contributed materially to the strengthening of financial conditions by issuing $439,515,750 in preferred stock, while 128 issued $16,895,276 in common stock.

During this period the number of active national banks, including state banks and trust companies in the District of Columbia, increased from 4,522 to 5,490, and deposits from $16,000,000,000 to $20,000,000,000, a net gain of 908 banks and $4,500,000,000 in deposits.

Even more remarkable than the increase in number and strength of the banks of the national banking system is the fact that during 1934 only one national bank failed, as against an average of 298 national banks during the three years prior to 1933.

The rehabilitation program has released nearly $2,000,000,000 in frozen deposits, an accomplishment which has undoubtedly exercised a major effect on the entire recovery program.

There has been no more conspicuous achievement incident to the recovery program than the rehabilitation and revitalization of the banking system of the nation. When the democratic administration took office the system was on the verge of complete collapse, thousands of banks had closed their doors during the preceding three years, and it was problematical how long others could continue to function.

The soundness of the financial policies of the democratic party, and the ability of its leaders to meet financial crises, is eloquently testified to by the fact that within less than two years the banking system of the country had been brought from the lowest ebb in its existence to the point where it is in a sounder and more useful position than it has ever before occupied.

A noted publicist urges congress to be itself. Our darker thinkers fear it will.

TAXPAYERS ORGANIZE

The organization in Macon by 300 leading Georgia citizens, representing every section of the state, of a state-wide taxpayers' association, brings renewed hope for the removal of the unfair burden of taxation now being borne by real estate.

The caliber of the men named as officers of the new association assures that its objectives will be sought in a progressive and energetic manner. Under the leadership of R. C. Neely Jr., of Waynesboro, president; O. F. Willingham, Rome, vice president; T. P. Saffold, Savannah, executive vice president, and Robert C. Mitchell, Atlanta, secretary and treasurer, the organization is certain to exercise a powerful influence toward bringing about the necessary readjustments of our tax system in order that the burden of taxation may fall equally and fairly on all classifications of property.

Present taxes on both urban and rural real estate is so heavy as to amount, in many counties, to practical confiscation. The value of fine business property in the cities has been decreased to a minimum of its former value because the taxes on it are, in many instances, as large as the revenue it can produce. Thousands of farms throughout the state have been deserted because their owners cannot pay the taxes levied on them and have a reasonable balance of profit from their labor.

The new association announces that its principal fight will be launched against the ad valorem tax, and that no suggestion as to other types of taxation will be advanced. This is a wise decision, since the chief objective is to lighten, or abolish, the ad valorem tax, and this end will be endangered in the division of opinion certain to arise in the association over the question of what type of taxation should be adopted in lieu of the ad valorem system.

It is to be hoped that the new organization will vigorously function in the effort to bring relief to real property. The state is faced by no more acute problem.

ENVIALE RECORDS

Again Waycross and Albany, two of Georgia's finest and best-governed smaller cities, have set records worthy of emulation by every incorporated community in the country.

The municipal government of Waycross announces that it enters the new year free of all obligations, except bonded indebtedness, and with a cash balance of nearly $50,000 in the bank. The city not only met its running expenses promptly during the year, but made considerable expenditures for extraordinary and permanent improvements.

This fine financial record was made in the face of a reduced tax rate, lower water rates and an increased discount for the prompt payment of taxes.

No better example could be found of the wisdom of adopting business methods in the conduct of the public business than the outstanding record set up by the Waycross city government during 1934.

Coincident with the announcement of the unusual financial well-being of the Waycross government, comes the announcement that Albany has achieved a new low rate in fire losses, the loss for 1934 being only 25 cents per capita and representing only two-fifths of a cent on each dollar of property involved in the fires that occurred during the year.

These two outstanding Georgia municipal governments have demonstrated that the public business can be handled economically and efficiently while public service is maintained on a high standard.

Georgia would be far better off if it had more governments, both municipal and county, conducted on the same plane of efficiency and economy as those of Waycross and Albany.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PASSEN.

The Tsetse Fly

Before going down to Lake Tschad with an ethnological expedition, which means crossing both the Sahara and the Libyan deserts, we are sitting here in Tunis, much longer than expected, and have today been inoculated against the Tsetse fly bite. I have seen but one or two individuals suffering from sleeping sickness so far and pitiable wrecks they were, but in the interior of Africa there are, it is said, millions of them. Since the war some 12,000,000 natives have died of this terrible disease, which is the result of a bite from the death fly. However, a vaccination campaign is going on for the eradication of the insect. Huge stretches of bush are burned and of course a lot of toxin is being administered. The toxin is a sure cure and even human beings who have been reduced to the skeleton state.

A doctor here told me that in a medical station on the Upper Congo he had to have a servant stand behind him to chase away the cloud of tsetse flies, while he treated the masses of half dead natives who were being carried to him from all around in the country.

I have not been bitten yet, but am bound to be once I start to travel southward. The injection of "Germanin" today renders me immune and gives me the standing of a big sorcerer in the eyes of the natives beyond the Sahara. Curiously enough, they, the natives, imagine that the magic against the death fly resides in the injection of Germanin, and that it is a hypodermic needle, as to the "Germanin" preparation that's of less importance in their eyes.

Tunis Is Quiet.

There was a good deal of unrest in Tunis a few months ago. As a matter of fact, for awhile, the French authorities feared a general uprising. That was the time of the Jewish massacre in Constantine in Algeria, which spread to various other cities, far in Tunisia even. A commission of inquiry appointed by the French government has now established that the anti-Jewish outbreak was fostered by certain groups in order to avert a general revolt. The Jews were the victims who bore the brunt of the brutal attack, but whose death and suffering is supposed to have saved Tunis and Algeria from France.

The Tunisian government is now in a state of confusion. The modern governments ought to thank God for their benediction for the existence of the Jews. They're always handy to serve as scapegoats. Of course, in the case of the barbarous procedure, that's altogether beneath contempt.

The Bay of Tunis.

The Bay of Tunis rules by the grace of God and the French republic. He is ruler only in name. Just as the Sultan of Morocco is Emperor of Morocco, neither would last a month if the French army were to be withdrawn. The Moroccan sultan is a young man, but the Bey here in Tunis is a dignified old gentleman, dressed in the European style, with the exception that he wears a fez instead of a hat. I saw him riding out today in his limousine. He has a sombre, dour expression in his face. A disappointed man, you would say. I am only imitating this, but I seemed to feel that the Bey, in spite of his periodic declarations of loyalty to France, would prefer to be the master in his own land, in fact, and not one of his subjects. The sentiment would be natural. Even so, I said, he is a dignified old gentleman and a wise one. He has no illusions about the subject of his subject's affection for him.

PROPHYLAXIS AND ANAPHYLAXIS.

Most laymen know more or less definitely what prophylaxis and anaphylaxis mean. Pro means for, before, in behalf of, and phyla means guard. Prophylaxis is prevention of disease; a prophylactic being an agent which prevents disease.

This fine financial record was made in the face of a reduced tax rate, lower water rates and an increased discount for the prompt payment of taxes.

Mitchell, Atlanta, secretary and treasurer, the organization is certain to exercise a powerful influence toward bringing about the necessary readjustments of our tax system in order that the burden of taxation may fall equally and fairly on all classifications of property.

Present taxes on both urban and rural real estate is so heavy as to amount, in many counties, to practical confiscation. The value of fine business property in the cities has been decreased to a minimum of its former value because the taxes on it are, in many instances, as large as the revenue it can produce. Thousands of farms throughout the state have been deserted because their owners cannot pay the taxes levied on them and have a reasonable balance of profit from their labor.

The new association announces that its principal fight will be launched against the ad valorem tax, and that no suggestion as to other types of taxation will be advanced. This is a wise decision, since the chief objective is to lighten, or abolish, the ad valorem tax, and this end will be endangered in the division of opinion certain to arise in the association over the question of what type of taxation should be adopted in lieu of the ad valorem system.

It is to be hoped that the new organization will vigorously function in the effort to bring relief to real property. The state is faced by no more acute problem.

ENVIALE RECORDS

Again Waycross and Albany, two of Georgia's finest and best-governed smaller cities, have set records worthy of emulation by every incorporated community in the country.

The municipal government of Waycross announces that it enters the new year free of all obligations, except bonded indebtedness, and with a cash balance of nearly $50,000 in the bank. The city not only met its running expenses promptly during the year, but made considerable expenditures for extraordinary and permanent improvements.

This fine financial record was made in the face of a reduced tax rate, lower water rates and an increased discount for the prompt payment of taxes.

No better example could be found of the wisdom of adopting business methods in the conduct of the public business than the outstanding record set up by the Waycross city government during 1934.

Coincident with the announcement of the unusual financial well-being of the Waycross government, comes the announcement that Albany has achieved a new low rate in fire losses, the loss for 1934 being only 25 cents per capita and representing only two-fifths of a cent on each dollar of property involved in the fires that occurred during the year.

These two outstanding Georgia municipal governments have demonstrated that the public business can be handled economically and efficiently while public service is maintained on a high standard.

Georgia would be far better off if it had more governments, both municipal and county, conducted on the same plane of efficiency and economy as those of Waycross and Albany.

In Hungary you can change your name for 30 cents. You are not compelled to have great riches to get a good name.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

PRESTIGE WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The biggest social, financial and moral question inside the New Deal now is why State Secretary Hull is going to get $4,000 for a new auto and Agriculture Secretary Wallace is only allowed $1,500.

No one cares about the $4,000,000,000 deficit, the $34,000,000,000 dollar public debt or even the Lindbergh case when the inner circle closes the outer door and considers the grave consequences of class distinction, disclosed in the budget allowances for cabinet cars.

You will need a Jorgensen to find the root of this issue in President Roosevelt's budget message, but it is there and it is not merely a question of Hull versus Wallace. Madame Perkins has allowed herself a modest $3,500, apparently for some sort of modest new model, and furthermore there appears to have been collusion between Madame Perkins and Attorney-General Cummings, for he has made a budget claim for a new car for exactly the same amount.

It would not be so bad if the cabinet cars were not always lined up together outside the same tent, dinner, diplomatic receptions, and in Mr. Roosevelt's driveway on cabinet meeting days. Then the total budgetary picture would not be so apparent. There would be no opportunity for comparison between the inferior shay Mr. Wallace will get for $1,500 and the elegant plush chariot anticipated by Messrs. Hull and Cummings and Madame Secretary.

As it is, Mr. Wallace probably will have difficulty finding a chauffeur who will bear the constant snub he will get from the other chauffeurs, for, after all, a few thousand dollars in automobiles makes a lot of difference to chauffeurs as well as cabinet officers.

And the difference may be even greater than in the cited figures because each official will be permitted to turn in his own car on the new one. Hence, the plush trio may look forward to $5,000 cars, while the best that poor Mr. Wallace can expect will probably be $2,000.

In all seriousness, you can readily see a five-to-two ratio like that rather makes a permanent inferior of Mr. Wallace.

SCOFFERS The other cabinet officers apparently have only an academic interest in the matter. At least they did not mention any new cars in their budgets. They will use the old cars inherited from their predecessors or purchased earlier in the New Deal.

Let scoffers remember that the government furnishes cars to all high officials because they are needed in business and some of the cars are getting old. Mr. Hull's, for instance, is five years old. His turn-in consequently will be less.

Mr. Cummings' is four years old, but the age of the others is not stated.

However, it is not true that the new $5,000 machines in contemplation are going to be circus wagons or red, white and blue limousines. Nor are they to be outfitted with killicks. Those are false rumors. They are to be just the ordinary $5,000 vehicles, with simple radios, silver cigarette trays and the other ordinary necessities of cabinet motoring life.

SOLUTION That does not alter the seriousness of dangerous social distinctions, and the latest word from the fuming front is that Mr. Roosevelt, or at least Louis Howe, may take the situation in hand. There is a probability that Messrs. Hull and Cummings and Madame Secretary will be curtailed to $2,000 cars or Wallace will be ordered to take a $5,000 one, whether he wants it or not.

The one ray of hopeful light under the hood of this auto situation is being offered by Vice President Garner. You may recall he declined to use a government car as speaker of the house. He accepted one as vice president, but in the new budget he has recommended that the appropriation for its operation be cut from $9,000 a year to $4,000. The explanation apparently is that the vice president does not care to take his official car back to Uvalde during the recess of congress.

Another suggestion of a hopeful ray has been worked out by Treasury Secretary Morgenthau. He uses a government thought car personally, but he has ordered use by minor treasury officials of confiscated bootlegger and rum-running cars.

When in New York, his associates say he has been known to use the seized car of Owney Madden or one of the other ex-big shots which has bullet-proof glass.

GUSSING All the insiders believe the highest one are trying to find out who is going to head the new employment program set-up for Mr. Roosevelt. Apparently none of them (Messrs. Ickes, Hopkins, et al.) has an inkling. It means much to them because Hopkins' job is being abolished and Ickes will lose the FWA under the new set-up.

The best guess still is that both Hopkins and Ickes will be appointed on a board with others to handle the funds and that Frank Walker or someone of his pacific type will be made chairman to maintain peace.

Friends of your old pal, General Johnson, have been mentioning his name for chairman, but he has said he would not accept another government job.

NOTES A way to keep the cabinet from breaking up over the auto issue may be found in Mr. Hopkins' recent receipt of information that his unemployed boys in Florida are rounding up wild horses which were tame when abandoned after the realty boom exploded. As no one knows what to do with them, they might be sent up here for cabinet officers to ride.

War Secretary Dern is one officer who got a new car last year, but it only cost $2,500, which leaves him little better off than Wallace.

Literateurs liked the style of the dissenting opinion of Supreme Court Justice Cardozo in the oil case. It was reminiscent of that brilliant dissenter, retired Justice Holmes. Cardozo is expected to come nearer filling Holmes' toga than anyone else on the bench.

The criminal division in the justice department costs only $102,000 a year, while federal tax prosecutions cost $500,000. In other words, the government spends five times as much chasing taxpayers as it does pursuing all other criminals.

Even Slaves Were a Burden When the Plantation Raised More Than It Needed

By Robert Quillen

Nothing is profitable except by contrast. It is thirst that gives value to water, hunger that gives value to food, work that gives value to leisure.

The things we value most have no value in themselves but only as they supply a need.

When the fruit crop is uncommonly heavy and and peaches rot on the ground for want of a market, everybody can understand that a surplus is unprofitable and burdensome. But the age-old habit of greed still blinds us to the truth that any excess must be a nuisance.

If a man in some frontier land prepares for winter by cutting cordwood and neatly piling it in his yard, his industry is reasonable and profitable while it supplies the quantity of fuel he can use.

But if he forgets the purpose of his labor and continues to chop furiously month after month and year after year, stacking the wood mountain high, he is no longer a rational man, laboring to some purpose, but the helpless slave of a habit that makes his life unprofitable and ridiculous.

He is like a mad traveler who forgets his goal and so wanders on in a circle until the end of his days, tricked by the belief that wandering is the sole purpose of his setting forth.

A sensible man, confronted by the necessity of working in order to live, learns a trade and begins to save money for his old age.

He works to supply his present need and saves to supply the need of his declining years when he can work no more. His purpose is to retire while still capable of enjoying life. He realizes that the business of life is living, and he works and saves only to make living more enjoyable.

But working soon becomes a mental habit. The getting of property becomes an end in itself instead of a means to an end. The property he intended to use now uses him, and he becomes a mere caretaker of a useless surplus.

The tragedy of it is that the world thinks him a success and so perpetuates the folly that having too much is an honor because many haven't enough.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Roosevelt WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 9.—When Mr. No Piker. Roosevelt speaks of money, he deals in such big, fleshy figures that, say what you will about him and his schemes, nobody will ever call him a piker.

Mr. Roosevelt's budget message, read out before the members of congress yesterday, asks for $8,500,000,000 for another year's expenses of the government. He expects that by June, 1936, when the money has been spent, the country will owe itself about $4 billion.

These are light-year figures, formerly used almost exclusively by astronomers in their calculations of the distance to make people realize for a moment that they are only very inferior bugs crawling around on the hide of a very thin planet, and that everything will be over in a minute, anyway, and it doesn't matter much what happens to whom or how soon. It is a thought which would be a great consolation in a time of secessism if one could only remember.

Until a few years ago, such figures were not applied to dollars.

Money Thirty-four billion is so much money that if Mr. Roosevelt were somehow to search everybody on the streets, raid all the banks and cash registers and pari-mutuel rooms in the country and rake in all the printed cash and gold and silver, there would still be a deficit of twenty billion. It is so much money that there isn't that much money. In fact, it isn't really money. They only call it money because that is what it would be, if it were.

Nobody seems to give much thought to the question whether it is ever going to be paid and if so how. Nobody now living will live to see the day when it is paid for the debt is going to be bequeathed, with best regards, to somebody else. A system of bridges, motor highways, tenements, electric bed-warmer and egg-beaters, red, custom-made lily ponds and paintings of cows in the meadow eating buttercups.

Rents Are Up It can only be repaid, it is estimated, by Washington just now, where the figures are housed, nobody any longer figures any pain. There are about 80,000 government employees, and many of them

Income Tax Blanks To Be Mailed Today

Blanks for the 1934 income tax returns will be mailed to every taxpayer today, W. E. Page, collector of internal revenue, announced Wednesday. This year's blank will include a new form, the collector explained, a pink sheet which the taxpayer must fill out and return at the same time he sends in his regular return under penalty of $5 extra assessment.

The new pink sheet requires the name, address, occupation, and net and gross income of the taxpayer in addition to other information, is in order to permit the government officials to gather certain information more quickly, Mr. Page said.

The income tax blanks are returnable on March 15, with a 25 per cent penalty for failure to do so by that date. Those wishing assistance in filling out their returns may apply to any of the seven zone offices of the internal revenue department located in Atlanta, Savannah, Columbus, Macon, Valdosta, and Augusta. The Atlanta zone office is on the second floor of the old post office in the collector's office.

CAROLINA LEGISLATOR KILLED IN AUTO WRECK

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Representative James R. Belk, 67, of Camden, member of the house from Kershaw county, fatally injured today in an automobile accident while on his way here for the legislative session. His automobile left the road and crashed into a tree. Belk was a lumber dealer at Camden.

Judge Moore Begg Someone To Join the Oinks-Er-Elks

Judge Virlyn B. Moore's smile is a little sickly, isn't it? And George Hamilton (left) is grinning wide open. The Fulton Judge has a pig. The state treasurer has just gotten rid of one. But you will have to read the story. Staff photo by George Cornett.

This pig is getting "hot." Do not misunderstand. It was not stolen, but was presented in fee simple. But the porker is causing plenty of trouble. Every man who has it handled to him is dropping his official and private business and concentrating all his efforts to get rid of it. And it probably will be passed around till the pig's mileage will equal or pass some of the world's long-distance records. It won't ever qualify for a new non-stop mark, however.

Judge Virlyn B. Moore, of Fulton superior court, has it this morning, having received it Wednesday afternoon as he was leaving the county courthouse. And State Treasurer George Hamilton breathed a sigh of relief when he "plopped" it into

NOTED WOMAN WRITER SPEAKS TWICE TODAY

Anna Steese Richardson, director of the Good Citizenship Bureau and associate editor of the Woman's Home Companion and one of the best known women in the nation in magazine work and as a speaker, will address two groups in Rich's tea room today.

women on "Civic Responsibilities of Women."

Mrs. Richardson is a nationally known figure, having been connected with the Woman's Home Companion since 1903. In 1912 she inaugurated the Better Babies Bureau, under the sponsorship of the Women's Home Companion, and her influence spread quickly all over the country, creating the sentiment which brought about the demand for the United States children's bureau.

She performed notably in the World War both here and abroad, starting "Soldiers All" in support of the various societies which were doing relief work for the allies.

After the 19th amendment enfranchising women was passed, she organized the Good Citizenship Bureau of the Woman's Home Companion, of which she is now director, for the purpose of aiding women to meet their new civic responsibilities.

Mrs. Richardson is a highly successful speaker. She has spoken before many of the state and national conventions of the civic organizations whose work she so enthusiastically supports.

Mrs. Richardson comes to Atlanta as the guest of the Atlanta Advertising Club which organization she will address at their weekly Thursday luncheon. But Rich's felt that the message she could bring Atlanta women was of such vital importance that they arranged for this special talk in their tea room during the afternoon. The public is invited to hear this unusually interesting and important talk.

WOMAN SAYS LAWYER FINANCED SPEAKEASY

An Atlanta lawyer and two real estate men were charged in city criminal court Wednesday with being the financial backers of an alleged night club and speakeasy by Mrs. E. B. Brewer, charged with a liquor violation at 428 Courtland street. Mrs. Brewer was found not guilty by a jury after ten minutes' deliberation.

Cards seized by officers at the place, where they found 11 pints of liquor, advertised the place as the "Institute" and invited "membership" while the club was described as featuring beautiful hostesses and refreshments. According to the woman's statement in her own defense the remodeling of the place was financed by the men named, and she took a nightly "cut" of 40 per cent of receipts.

FERA Worker Jailed, Rum Seized at Tower

Ardell Stoghill, negro FERA worker arrested Wednesday on a charge of attempting to smuggle whisky to prisoners at Fulton tower, will be given a hearing this morning before Judge Jesse M. Wood in criminal court of Atlanta.

Stoghill was employed in renovation work at the tower. He was taken into custody as he checked in at the jail after two quarts of whisky had been found hidden beneath his overalls by Chief Jailer Robert Holland and Assistant Engineer Fred Lyons.

The FERA worker said he was taking the liquor to Dee Lasby, negro trustee, who, in turn, would sell it to other prisoners in the tower.

Lasby was locked in a cell after being questioned. He denied that he had sold any liquor in the jail or that he intended to.

KANSAS CITY OFFICIALS DISMISSED BY ICKES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes today suspended A. F. Reaney, special agent in charge of the Kansas City office of the interior department division of investigation, for the good of the service.

Ickes also suspended William T. Nix, chief clerk in the Kansas City office, on the same grounds.

Legislators Arriving in Atlanta With Pet Bills Ready for Hopper

Members of the Georgia general assembly began arriving Wednesday for the opening of the biennial session next Monday morning, practically every representative and senator ready to introduce some bill or resolution which, if passed, will change the complexion of the state government completely.

The only item of news apparent during a day of conferences and planning was that Senator Preston Rawlins, of Macon, the governor's home city, is to be elected president pro tem. of the senate without opposition. There had been some talk of opposition to Senator Rawlins but it appeared to be dissipating as the hour for the opening of the session drew near.

Other officials of both houses, including Speaker E. D. Rivers, of the house, Senator President Charles D. Redwine, Speaker Pro Tem, Ellis A. Arnall, of the house, Clerk Andrew J. Kingery, of that body, and Secretary John W. Hammond, of the senate, all apparently are to be elected without opposition and with the endorsement of Governor Eugene Talmadge.

Speaker Rivers and Senator Redwine have been in Atlanta for several weeks. Senator Rawlins arrived Wednesday and Speaker Pro Tem, Arnall will be here this morning.

It was estimated Wednesday that about a third of the members of both houses are here at present and that all will be here by Saturday night.

Representative Stonewall Dyer, of Coweta county, announced during the day he had two important bills to offer during the session. One calls for abolition of the court of appeals and enlargement of the supreme court to nine members and the other would put all employees of the state government under civil service.

In Athens, Senator Lamar Rucker said Wednesday that he planned to introduce a bill making 6 per cent the maximum interest rate in Georgia and one per cent a month the maximum rate on small loans, on which 3 1/2 per cent per month is the present maximum.

Wiley Galloway, of Waverly Hall, announced Wednesday he is a candidate for doorkeeper of the senate, a post for which he was defeated by Perry Griffin in 1933. Griffin is expected to ask re-election.

Speaker Rivers announced he had accepted an invitation to address the Atlanta Post No. 1 of the American Legion at its meeting at 12:30 o'clock Friday at the Analey hotel.

WILLIAM MAY RITES HELD ON WEDNESDAY

Final rites for William May, 72, prominent Atlanta insurance executive, who died Tuesday morning at the residence, 683 Linwood avenue, N. E., following an illness of several weeks, were held Wednesday afternoon at the Druid Hills Baptist church. Burial will be in Louisville, Ky., Thursday.

Mr. May came to Atlanta in 1920 as superintendent of the southern farm department of the Royal Insurance Company and was recognized as one of the foremost insurance executives in the country.

One-Way Street BY JOSEPH McCORD

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. When Jean Sawyer is 17, her father, "Daddy Jack," is sent to prison for six years for using funds of the Gorman bank where he was employed for further stock market margin. He had made money at first, using it to rear his family and educate his four children of whom Jean is the oldest and his favorite. She gets a job as a typist for the Gorman Times, studies art at night and her work attracts the attention of Emory Stewart, head of the dress department of The Iron Block, Gorman's big department store, owned by Spencer Cannon, the city's leading citizen. The day Emory Stewart's daughter, Peggy, is married, the new general manager, who has her father order Stewart to dismiss "that Sawyer girl," as she refers to Jean. When Mark learns that Jean's father is the cause, and Stewart says Jean is doing good work as an artist and designer, he persuades her to remain just as her father is paroled after serving over four years. Jean invites Mark for Sunday night supper. After her father leaves for church, she asks Mark why he doesn't like her and says, "I am going to make you like me. Little." When she invites him later to meet the Bob Ridgways and play contract, he says he does not play the game, but will sit with her. After several rubbers Susan says Mark on a settee beside her and proceeds to monopolize him for the rest of the evening, much to her hostess' unbecomingly resentment. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XVIII. "Miss Sawyer, I'm going to ask a great favor of you. I know it's a lot of nerve, but I haven't been in a real home for so long that I don't know what it's like. I wish you'd ask me to have dinner with you. I won't be any bother. Maybe I can help some. I'm handy about a kitchen, really." Instead of the quick refusal he expected, he found Jean regarding him in grave silence. "Well?" He smiled persuasively. "Do you mean it, Mr. Sturges?" "Indeed I do. I'd appreciate it more than I can tell you." "Then please come in." John Sawyer appeared almost at once when Jean ushered her guest into the small living room. She breathed a sigh of relief when she saw that her father had donated his coat. That was the one amenity of home life to which he found it difficult, seemingly, to subscribe. She guessed rightly that he had observed the arrival from his favorite chair by the front window. "Mr. Sturges, this is my father," Jean said, smiling. Mark extended his hand with an engaging smile. "I want to take the blame for this before Miss Sawyer does. I have invited myself to dinner. I hope you'll be good enough to tell me it's all right." "Of course it is," Sawyer returned. "We are very glad. He looked at Jean a trifle quizzically as she slipped her arm through his. "I told Mr. Sturges he was taking a chance, Daddy," she explained, the color mounting to her cheeks. "He's brave, don't you think? And do you suppose there is something in the kitchen to feed him?" "I'm very sure there is," her father agreed. "Suppose I go and explore a bit." "No indeed. You're going to entertain Mr. Sturges the girls at home?" "Upstairs, I think." "But aren't you going to let me help?" Mark demanded. "That was a part of the bargain." "No, thank you. I'm not now. You visit with Daddy." And with that, she disappeared. Sturges dropped into a chair waiting for an invitation. "Does Mrs. Sawyer permit smoking in her parlor?" he wanted to know. "And will you have one of these?" "Please do," his host said quickly. He declined the proffered cigarette. "I used to be a pipe addict, but I have not smoked for several years now. There was the suggestion of a smile at the corners of his thin lips. "I think I feel the better for it." "Don't doubt it," Sturges agreed. "A foolish habit at best." He sensed the man sitting opposite was ill at ease despite his calm demeanor, and plunged briskly into conversation. "Miss Sawyer was exceedingly kind to me this evening. I took the liberty of asking her to dine with me, but she told me she must come home and feed her family. I couldn't resist asking if I might come, too. I've been eating in hotels and restaurants for so long that I wanted the sensation of sitting down to a real family table." "I know," Sawyer agreed. "It is a great treat when one has been away from home for a time." "Mark changed the theme tactfully. To the subject that held a common interest. "I have been receiving some very nice reports about Miss Sawyer's work down at the store. I suspect that she's too modest to tell you, but Emory Stewart is very enthusiastic about the things she is doing for the department. She has a very unusual talent for a girl of her age. Her services." "I think I can be a very unusual girl, naturally," the father said in a low voice. "She is. I understand that in her only instruction in art was obtained in a local school. Some day, she must arrange to have some advanced training. But the practical experience she is gaining now will always stand her in good stead. We're in no hurry to lose her," he added with a smile. "She is very much interested in her work. Jean has told me about the encouragement Mr. Stewart has given her. . . you, too. I know she will try never to disappoint you. There are not many girls who . . . He caught himself sharply. Sturges guessed what was in the other's mind and contented himself with nodding silently. Sawyer regarded him steadily. "Mr. Sturges," he began. "I think we may as well talk frankly. You know about me. . . where I have spent the past few years. . . Yes," the younger man said quietly. "I know all about it." "I supposed so." "You're at home now. The rest is past history." "Yes and no. I'm on parole." "What of it? That means nothing in your case." "That's just it. It might in Jean's. I have been afraid of that." "Nonsense. Why should it make any difference to us. . . if that's what you have in mind." "I was not sure. I am doing everything I can to take my place in the world again. I want employment. . . I must have it. It makes me sick at heart to think how Jean has been among friends and business acquaintances. . . meeting people. . . with her father in prison." "But you see, Mr. Sawyer, she loves you. That's the answer." "Yes. Bunkie's always stuck by her dad." Pride mingled with regret. Sturges was quick to catch the peevish name that had slipped out unconsciously. He liked it.

AUNT HET

SALLY'S SALLIES

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

CAPITALS OF EUROPE. IV—Vienna, Austria. During a visit to Vienna an American tourist took a ride in a taxicab. While in the cab he saw an apple and then tried to figure out what to do with the core. He decided to put it in a paper bag and toss it out of the window.

A man who was in Vienna at that time told me of an incident which shows how serious the food shortage was. In a street fight, he said, a horse was shot down. People who were near the spot forgot about the bullets, and rushed to carry up the horse for meat.

In later years, Vienna took steps to rise from its misery. Food was obtained; and plans were made for a new and better city. Old buildings were torn down, and new ones were set up in their place.

In 1930, I visited some of the apartment houses which had been built with money from public funds of Vienna. There were many windows, to provide sunshine and fresh air. Each apartment house had a large open court with a garden for flowers, gardens, and for children to play.

Austria became a republic in 1920. It has been under control of "dictators." One of these, Engelbert Dollfuss, was assassinated the past year.

The future of Austria is in doubt. Efforts have been made to bring about a union with Germany; but many Austrians believe that it would be a mistake to join with Germany, at least during the present period.

CITY SLUM AREAS
COSTLY, UNSIGHTLYPolicing Costs, Mortality
Rates Higher, Housing
Board Report Shows.

Atlanta's slum areas, comprising a population of less than one-fifth of the entire city, cost nearly twice as much to police and are breeding places for crime and disease, according to a report of the municipal housing authority, headed by Councilman Max M. Cuba, of the second ward.

The total population of the city is 270,360, according to the report. The slum areas have a population of 44,300, while the remainder of the city has a population of 226,060.

The per capita cost of policing the slum sections was $6.10, according to studies by the authority, while that of policing the remainder of the city was only $3.23 per capita.

Studies are being made by Raymond B. Torres, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission, who also is secretary to the housing authority.

Adult crime, juvenile delinquency, tuberculosis mortality, infant mortality, demolition and new construction, population and alley housing already have been studied in comprehensive work done, and tax delinquency, property valuation, trends in population, utility services and playgrounds are now receiving the attention of Torres and his corps of assistants.

Big Percentage of Arrests.

From October 12 to October 31, 1933, there were 1,600 arrests throughout the city, according to the report, and 434 of the number were made in slum sections.

The studies are designed to show that low cost rehousing should be pushed in several sections of the city. There were 293 arrests per square mile in slum sections as compared to only 35 per square mile of the remaining portions of the city.

In 1933 there were 803 convictions among children in juvenile courts. There were 504 negroes and 290 whites. A total of 350 of the cases originated in the so-called blighted sections.

Of the 830 deaths from tuberculosis, 291 originated on the blighted sections, and 28 per cent of the deaths were attributed to sections of the city which is only 5 per cent of the area of the city and where only 17 per cent of the population of the municipality lives.

The per capita cost of treating tuberculosis in slum sections was $1.02 as against 35 cents for the remainder of the city based solely on mortalities. No effort was made to obtain costs of treatment where no deaths resulted.

High Infant Mortality.

Of the 987 infant deaths in Atlanta for 1931-33, 247 or slightly over 25 per cent were within the sections described as "blighted."

There are 60,267 housing structures housing nearly all Atlanta's population, and 25 per cent of the population are living in what is termed "crowded quarters," according to a real property inventory conducted by the department of commerce. Forty-three per cent of the houses need repairs, 23 per cent of the structures are in need of structural repairs, and 4 per cent are unfit for human habitation.

Fourteen of the dwelling units are without running water, 30 per cent have no electrical conveniences, 26 per cent have no indoor water closets and 35 per cent have no bath, tubs or showers.

Downtown congested areas comprising and contiguous to negro sections were described generally as blighted, and the studies for the most part affect them.

Ten housing authority is asking the 1935 Georgia legislature to approve a bill enabling Atlanta and other Georgia cities and counties to set up a housing authority backed by state statutes in order that the city may "participate more fully and more easily in federal housing funds."

PLEAS FOR CLEMENCY
TO KILLERS REJECTED

The state prison commission Wednesday declined to recommend executive clemency for two condemned murderers and at the same time took under advisement an application for clemency filed on behalf of W. T. Morris, former Atlanta policeman, who is serving a life sentence for the murder of Police Lieutenant J. T. Barfield.

The slayers whose applications were rejected are J. T. Hammett, convicted of the murder of Howard Booser in Troup county, and Robert Hargrove, convicted of the murder of James Zittauer in Effingham county. Attorneys for both men announced they would appeal directly to Governor Talmadge. Hargrove is scheduled to be executed Friday and Hammett next Monday.

The Morris application was filed by Stonewall Dyer, Newnan lawyer, and opposed by Solicitor General John A. Boykin. Dyer told the commission that Morris is in very poor health.

BARKER APPOINTED
REGIONAL ENGINEER

W. E. Barker, former Atlantan but more recently of Chicago, was appointed southeastern regional highway engineer of the Portland Cement Association, it was announced Wednesday by W. M. Kinney, general manager, as the regional meeting of state engineers of the association closed.

Field engineers in the southeastern states will be assisted in their problems by Mr. Barker, who will also aid state officials in planning pavements best suited to local traffic needs. Hugh R. Roberts, of Atlanta, spoke at the Wednesday session of the meeting on the urgent need of soil erosion control. He said the loss from erosion over 20 years, unless checked, amounted to $80 an acre in a cotton field, more than enough to buy most Georgia farm lands.

Proper terraces and draining, Mr. Roberts said, would restore the full productivity of the soil and the desired underground water level.

4th Mystery Death Arouses
Small Alabama Community

MOORESVILLE, Ala., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The fourth death under mysterious and violent circumstances within a radius of two miles of Mooreville tonight brought a force of Limestone county officers into this quiet rural community to seek the solution.

A coroner's jury only added to the mystery today after returning a verdict of "death at the hands of parties unknown" in the case of A. C. Jolly, 25, night watchman on a bridge near here.

"There are indications that he might have been choked or smothered to death," said Sheriff A. L. Baker after an investigation. "There are some peculiar things about the case that we do not feel should be made public as yet."

Sheriff Baker said physicians found a slight bruise on the left shoulder, a small skinned place above the left eye and a bump over the ear, "none of which caused death."

Although there was some evidence of a struggle, Sheriff Baker said Jolly's shotgun stood in the corner of the shack where he usually kept it, and two loaded shells were near by. One discharged shotgun shell was in the shack, however, and there were some pellets in the walls.

That constituted the evidence and clues on which the officers had to work to unravel the latest mystery death in the Mooreville area.

"It is very mysterious," the sheriff said, adding that he and his force already have been studying in comprehensive work done, and tax delinquency, property valuation, trends in population, utility services and playgrounds are now receiving the attention of Torres and his corps of assistants.

Several citizens, however, tonight expressed doubt that Jolly was a victim of violence, but held to a theory of accidental asphyxiation.

Arthur Richardson, prominent merchant, pointed out that Jolly was burning a small charcoal stove in the shack, which was tightly closed, and could have died from asphyxiation.

The death of Mrs. Morgan, who last was seen alive on a Pullman car en route from Medford, Mass., to Sheffield, Ala., started the chain of mysteries. Examination of the Pullman disclosed that the windows had not been tampered with, and that the doors were locked. She was fully clothed when found.

On November 17 a passer-by found Claude Clark, 15-year-old "model boy," mortally wounded beside the highway. "He shot me," gasped young Clark, and lapsed into unconsciousness from which he never roused. A .22-caliber bullet had struck him between the eyes.

The third death, near the scene of young Clark's slaying, was that of W. L. Stephens, of Madison, doing contract hauling on a highway job. He, too, had been shot in the head, and on the running board of his truck was a .32-caliber pistol. The coroner returned a verdict "death at the hands of parties unknown."

ROCKEFELLER FILES REPORT ON HOLDINGS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—John D. Rockefeller Jr. reported today to the securities and exchange commission that in November, 1934, he held 1,872,528 shares of Standard Oil of California, 2,743,122 shares of Standard of New Jersey, and 5,565,370 in Socoy-Vacuum.

The report, signed by Rockefeller and transmitted by his representative, Philip F. Keeler, showed Rockefeller owned "more than 10 per cent" of the capital stock of each company.

The securities act requires that officers or directors of a company, or anyone holding more than 10 per cent of the capital stock must file reports on their holdings.

'Square Dealers' Open Drive
For Repeal of Long Measures

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Square Deal Association, belligerent anti-Huey P. Long group, gathered in mass meeting here tonight to organize on a statewide scale and push their demands.

At a huge rally here tonight the Square Deal Association, self-styled "Blue Shirts," organized on a statewide scale and prepared to push their demands for repeal of the more than 300 so-called dictatorial laws enacted last year by the Louisiana legislature at the command of the "kingfish."

Meanwhile, in New Orleans, the Louisiana supreme court held today that it was not necessary for Associate Justice John B. Fournet to recuse himself at hearings on constitutionality of laws passed for the Long dictatorship at the time when Fournet was presiding officer of the state senate and aided in their passage.

A motion filed today before the court by James C. Henriques, attorney for the board of liquidation of the city debt, requested Justice Fournet to recuse himself for arguments on the Long act seeking to reorganize the New Orleans sewerage and water board which gives the state administration control of the board through appointive powers.

Fournet declined to leave the bench and his associate justices, led by Chief Justice Charles A. O'Neill, retired to chambers and decided unanimously, with Fournet not participating, that he should not be forced to recuse himself.

While the enemies of Long moved to extend their organization into every parish in the state, the dictator and his chief lieutenant, Governor Oscar K. Allen, were absent from their "empire."

Absence of the leaders, however, failed to check operation of the dictatorship. At noon today 32 new rivets were driven into the dictatorial framework as the last batch of the "kingfish" personally written laws became effective.

Ironically, as his enemies moved to check him, Long's control over Louisiana tightened.

The 32 acts which were formally written into the statute books today subject some 5,000 school teachers to his will, provide him with greater supervision over parish and municipal governments, strike additional blows at the antagonistic New Orleans city administration, push up taxes on manufacturing interests and impose a stiff levy on the refining of oil.

The oil tax, however, was modified before it became law.

As opposition to the dictatorship organized, Senator Long was busily engaged in Washington shouting defiance at the Roosevelt administration and preparing to again bring his "share-the-wealth" program before congress.

Governor Allen was mysteriously missing. He has not visited his offices in the capitol since Monday and was reported absent from the executive mansion.

2 CAROLINANS DIE
AT GRADE CROSSING

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C., Jan. 9. (AP)—The bodies of Stewart M. Balfance, 36, proprietor of a filling station here, and a woman, identified by Sheriff J. F. Forbes, of Camden county, as Mrs. Graham Newbern, of Hertford, were found today in a wrecked automobile at the bottom of an embankment near the Norfolk-Southern railroad crossing between Elizabeth City and Camden.

Sheriff Forbes advanced the theory that the two had been instantly killed when the automobile was struck by a Norfolk-Southern freight train last night about 9:30 o'clock.

Federal Lottery Asked In Congressional Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. (AP)—A proposal to let the secretary of the treasury run a lottery to raise money to help meet government expenses was made to the house today by Representative Kenney, democrat, New Jersey.

He introduced a bill to legalize the federal lottery. Kenney introduced a similar measure last session.

Invent persons, said congress should specify how the funds it votes are to be spent rather than handing them over for use as the president desires.

Some of the phases of the platform adopted by the league's executive committee were:

To preserve American institutions and to combat the growth of bureaucracy, the spread of monopoly, the socialization of industry and the regimentation of American life.

To uphold the principle that the levying of taxes and appropriation of funds with the designation of the manner in which they are to be spent are exclusively the functions of congress.

To advocate economy in government, a sound fiscal policy and the maintenance of a stable currency.

To further employment and rehabilitation and oppose government interference and competition with private industry.

To oppose measures that threaten the security of invested savings and support those that protect them.

New Paramount Film Is "Limehouse Blues"

The series fascination of one of the world's most sinister and glamorous underworlds has been marvelously caught by Paramount's "Limehouse Blues," starting Thursday at the Paramount theater, and serves as a background for an enthralling melodrama and love tale of pathos and tenderness.

With London's famous Chinatown as its locale, "Limehouse Blues" presents George Raft, Jean Parker and Anna May Wong in the principal roles of a story that deals with the notorious Thames river pirates and the tangled threads of noble, touching love.

At the opening of the film, we see Raft, a man of mixed oriental and western blood, who through cunning and ruthlessness has risen to the chieftainship of the river pirates.

He destroys his stronger rival, Pug Talbot, takes over the protection of his stepdaughter, played by Jean Parker, and in time falls hopelessly in love with her. But Anna May Wong, the Chinese dancer in his Lily Garden cafe, becomes jealous and plots against the girl.

She learns that the latter has been meeting Kent Taylor, whom she loves, and gives the information to Raft. Raft lays plans to do away with Taylor as a rival.

The thrilling climax of the tale comes when Raft is made to realize that Jean Parker's happiness is more important to him than even her love. Transformed by this sudden realization he races through a trap laid for him by the police and dares death to save her lover.

Members of Dr. Moore's committee in Memphis yesterday were Dr. W. K. Sick, of Anna, Ill., and Dr. Perry F. Webb, of Pine Bluff, Ark.

VIOLATION OF NRA LAID TO MILL AT GASTONIA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. (AP)—The textile labor board found today that the Groves Thread Company, of Gastonia, N. C., had violated the recovery act in discriminating against union employees.

The board gave the company 15 days to notify it that the union men had been re-employed. Otherwise the company is to be cited to NRA for Blue Eagle removal and to the justice department for legal action.

"Broadway Bill" Opens Its Third Week Today

"Broadway Bill," the Capra-directed Columbia production, starts its third week at the Rialto theater today with no sign of any diminution, in the crowds that are filling the house several times daily to see it.

With Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy in the star roles and with Walt Connolly topping a splendidly selected supporting cast, the picture is a typical Capra feature. It is a story of the racetracks with the title derived from the name of the horse whose running in the Derby centers the tale. Never there was a more exciting sequence on the screen than the races seen in this.

There is a delightful romance mingled with the racing story and the picture, as other Capra stories, is notable for the many excellent character parts and the bright comedy that sparkle throughout.

For the benefit of those seeing the picture for the second or third time, Manager W. T. Murray has secured a complete change in the short subjects on the program, starting today.

Local News Pictures To Be Seen at Capitol

According to present plans by the Capitol theater, newsreel pictures featuring interesting bits of news that deal directly with this city will soon be shown in a weekly feature at the Capitol, being offered as a part of the regular weekly Pathe News. Plans have been made with the Strickland Film Laboratories, well-known Atlanta motion picture firm, for the making of these pictures. This newsreel feature is to be offered exclusively at the Capitol each week. Merchants, hotels, or any organization that expects a bit of news suitable for a newsreel picture is advised to contact the management of the Capitol theater.

It was stated by the Capitol management that this new news service would in no manner interfere with the showing of regular newsreel pictures. The local shots will augment the weekly Pathe News.

Federal Aid Sought For Tung Oil Industry

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. (AP)—Members of congress from the deep south called today upon the farm credit administration and asked financial aid to lynch commercially the tung oil industry along the gulf coast.

E. I. Myers, administrator governor, agreed to send an agent to the gulf immediately to study the problem. Representative McDuffie, democrat, Alabama, said he believed the administration now had authority to make loans to persons cultivating tung trees, but Senator Russell, democrat, Georgia, expressed the opinion amendment of the farm credit act will be necessary.

George K. Perrault, Long Fox, Succumbs

OPOLUSAS, La., Jan. 9. (AP)—George K. Perrault, 37, for many years one of Senator Huey P. Long's bitterest opponents in the state house of representatives, died at his home here last night from an infection which set in after he bruised his leg while on a recent hunting trip.

After serving in the World War and finishing a law degree at Louisiana State University, Perrault, at the age of 27, was elected to the house of representatives from St. Landry parish in 1924. He was re-elected in 1928 and 1932.

He was one of the organizers of the Constitutional league in 1930, which opposed Senator Long, and was for a number of years a member of the Louisiana State Bar Association.

Fewer Weevils Found In Cotton Sector

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 9. (AP)—The cotton-growing south presently faces prospects for a less weevil infestation of the 1935 crop during the past two years, a survey covering 12 states conducted by the statistical division of the American Cotton Cooperative Association revealed today.

The late fall infestation this year was found to be approximately 50 percent as compared with 63 percent last year and 70 percent in 1933.

Although declaring the early infestation this year is less than in 1931 and 1933, the association's survey warned that it is sufficiently heavy to cause severe weevil damage in the event of normal June and July temperatures and high humidity during the growing season.

The association estimated weevil damage during the present season at 6.5 percent, as against 9.1 percent a year ago.

HOOPER IS ELECTED N. Y. LIFE DIRECTOR

Mr. Hoover was unanimously elected. He will occupy the place left vacant by the recent death of John E. Andrus, the "millionaire straphanger."

Due to the fact that Mr. Hoover is in Chicago, his installation as a board member was postponed until the next regular meeting, February 13.

Is This Too Good For Your Cough?

Creosolium may be a better help than you need. It combines seven helps in one. It is made for quick relief, for safety.

Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Creosolium for any cough that starts.

The cost is a little more than a single help. But your druggist is authorized to guarantee it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are dangerous signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known—(adv.)

Yugoslavia's Queen Marks 35th Birthday

BELGRADE, Jan. 9. (AP)—Little King Peter helped his mother, the widowed Queen Marie, of Yugoslavia, celebrate her thirty-fifth birthday today.

The event, however, was saddened by memories of the recent assassination of King Alexander.

For three months little Peter has denied himself candy to save his pennies in order to purchase a sewing set for his mother as a birthday gift. His little brothers, Tommy and Andri, gave flowers.

Georgia Strike Guards Awarded Pay by Court

NEW YORK, Jan. 9. (AP)—Justice Keyes Winter in municipal court today decided in favor of 16 men who last month sued the Bergoff Detective Service for money due them for services during the textile strike in Georgia last September.

The decision of the court upheld the claim of the men for some $40 each against Pearl L. and Earl L. Bergoff, father and son, whose agency specializes in furnishing strike breakers in troubled areas.

The men alleged that they were engaged by Bergoff agents rounding up unemployed in Central park and that they were promised $5 a day for their services. They were kept waiting in New York four days, they said, before being shipped to Porterdale, Ga., where they were deputized as guards at the plant of the Bibb Manufacturing Company.

After several days' work there as guards, they alleged at the trial, they were ordered out of the state and returned to New York. According to their account, they were paid for their actual work there at $22.50 each, but were entitled to a total of $62.50 each to include their waiting time in New York and additional hours spent in almost continuous guard duty in Georgia.

U. S. Courts To Get NRA Labor Cases

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. (AP)—The administration today was preparing to begin criminal court action against employers found to have discharged employees for union activity.

The justice department probably will ask federal grand juries for a number of criminal indictments within a few weeks, it was said today in an authoritative quarter.

So far, punishment for violation of the recovery act's ban on discrimination against union members has been confined to Blue Eagle removal.

TWO LEASES CLOSED ON WHITEHALL STREET

Reflecting the steady improvement of business in Atlanta, two new leases on Whitehall street were leased Wednesday, one for a new out-of-town branch and the other for a jewelry store.

The space leased is 30x150 feet. The Industrial Bureau of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce was instrumental in bringing the branch to this city. Sam Rothberg, local real estate agent, negotiated the lease.

Mrs. Max Loeb leased quarters at 112 Whitehall street, through E. A. Dravin, vice president of the Draper-Owens Company, realtors, and will open a jewelry store at that location February 1. The lease was for a term of years.

SOCIAL LEGISLATION ADVOCATED BY NICE

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 9. (AP)—Harry W. Nice, Maryland's new governor, one of the republican victors in last November's elections, told the legislature today that the "republican party is not dead. It is very much alive—alive to its responsibilities to the people."

Nice, in his inaugural message recommending a program of social legislation, "sympathized" with the president "as he struggles with his gigantic burden" but criticized general policies of the federal administration.

Nice himself, has been mentioned as republican presidential timber since he defeated Governor Albert C. Ritchie last month.

HARMSEN FAMILY MARKS 80TH YEAR IN ATLANTA CHURCH

An unbroken record of 80 years of membership in the First Presbyterian church, during which period some member of the family occupied the family pew every Sunday, is the proud boast of the Harmsen family of Atlanta.

The Harmsen family record was brought to light Wednesday, the day after the 87th anniversary of the founding of the First Presbyterian church.

The first church received its charter in 1855—Charles and Julia Harmsen became members of the congregation. From that date until Mrs. Harmsen died in 1892 and Mr. Harmsen followed him in death in 1904, either one or one of their children or grandchildren were to be found in the family pew each Sunday of the year. And in a large majority of cases the entire family was present.

Martine Harmsen, a member of Whitner & Harmsen, and Mrs. William Bang, of 546 South Canfield street, are the surviving members of the Harmsen family in Atlanta, and they continue to carry on the tradition of unbroken attendance at First Presbyterian church by some member of the family.

Miss Mary Ellen Bennett Attends Saint Cecilia Ball in Charleston

By Sally Forth.

WHEN exclusive Charleston, S. C., society assembles this evening in historic Hibernian Hall for its annual Saint Cecilia ball, Atlanta will be represented in the attractive person of Miss Mary Ellen Bennett, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Alva McCrary.

Miss Bennett and her mother left by motor on Wednesday for the South Carolina city, where they will be the guests of their cousins, Dr. and Mrs. Rippon Wilson, at their home on Meeting street, just off the Battery.

In presenting her daughter at a Saint Cecilia ball, Mrs. McCrary will re-live the glorious days of her girlhood, when as Miss Florrie Jones, she journeyed to Charleston to attend the ball as the guest of the late William Bonneau Bennett, a Charleston cotton exporter who afterwards became her husband. Mr. Bennett and his brother, the late John Bennett, who were members of an old and aristocratic South Carolina family, were numbered among the city's most attractive Beau Brummels and were leading figures in the Saint Cecilia Society, of which their forebears were charter members.

Miss Bennett, who inherits much of the charm of her mother, will likewise fall heir to a wide circle of exclusive friends, who will accord her an enthusiastic welcome at her first Cecilia ball.

Miss Bennett, whose beauty is of the blonde type, has chosen for the brilliant occasion a becoming gown of aqua marine crepe, banded in handsome mink fur. Her flowers will be a cluster of pale pink orchids. A gay and festive program has been planned for this evening to honor the Atlanta visitors. Their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Bennett, will entertain at a cocktail party at their home at 7 Atlantic street. Later their hosts, Dr. and Mrs. Wilson, will give a beautifully appointed dinner. Mrs. Wilson will be remembered as the former Miss Marguerite Bennett, who has often visited in Atlanta.

The elaborate ball, highlighting the year's social calendar in Charleston and weighted with the noblest of southern traditions, will not get well under way before midnight, but the fortunate guests will remain for breakfast, which is served at dawn.

ALTHOUGH the month of June, according to the calen-

St. Mark Business Women Will Give Informal Reception

Business Women's Circle of St. Mark Methodist church will give an informal reception Sunday afternoon, January 13, from 4 to 5 o'clock in honor of 50 business women who have become members of the church during the past 12 months. In the receiving line will be officers of the circle including Miss Eloise Moon, chairman; Mrs. G. Aubrey Fisher, chairman in 1934; Mrs. John D. Stewart, vice chairman; Miss Margaret Waite, secretary; Miss Mattie Ivey, treasurer; Mrs. J. W. Hurt, president of the Woman's Missionary Society; and Dr. J. W. Johnson, pastor, and Mrs. J. W. Johnson.

Mesdames Ed F. Bond, Herbert Mayfield and Virginia Bolden will pour tea. The musical program will be under the direction of Mrs. W. G. Holman. Assisting in receiving will be Mesdames W. C. Dumas, W. B. Samsatt, Lee Thurmond, Theo S. Lewis, Fred Houser, Beatrice Lee, Nella Blackstock, Polly Lacy and Misses Virginia Porter, Carolyn Allen, Frances West, Emma Scott, Ethel Holbrook, Lura Simmons and Mary Fuller. One hundred business women of the church have been invited to call.

Their betrothal has been known to their intimates for more than a year, and when the blond bride-elect visited here at Thanksgiving, she was entertained in the home of her fiancé's parents. Although the parents of the pretty bride-elect hoped she would wait another year, they are perfectly delighted with the bridegroom-to-be, and will proceed with their plans to make the wedding an outstanding event in June. The only disappointment to their Atlanta friends is the fact that the couple will establish their residence in the metropolis, where the bridegroom-elect has a splendid position.

FOR originality and novelty in planning an informal dinner party Rufus Darby Jr. deserves nomination for first place in the masculine element. Clever, indeed, were the perfectly executed plans marking the dinner at which young Mr. Darby was host Tuesday evening in compliment to Miss Kathryn Jetton, popular debutante, who celebrated her birthday upon this occasion. Encircling the edge of the oval-shaped table was a miniature track on which ran a toy electric train, stopping and starting by the control of a button under the table at the host's place. Marking each guest's place was a diminutive railroad station bearing a name appropriate to the guest's surname.

The honor guest found no difficulty in finding her place designated by station "Jettison Junction." "Yundt Falls" showed Miss Marion Yundt where she was placed, and "Legg Stop" caused Miss Jacquita Leggat to be seated without looking further for her place. "Dean Dam" (which, no doubt, the clever Mr. Darby used for euphony only) indicated the chair reserved for Miss Spalding Dean. "Hewlett Hill" told Miss Sarah Hewlett where she would sit, and "Brumby Point" reserved a place for Miss Dorothy Brumby. Equally as clever were the station names marking the places of the masculine guests, including William Morrow, Lamar Ellis, Malcolm Reybold, Henry Greene and Virgil Shultz.

Merriment reigned throughout the dinner courses, especially when the jovial young host stopped the little train at each guest's place for delivery from the mail car of letters bearing cleverly worded congratulatory messages for the honor guest. Provoking the most fun at the party were directions given the feminine guests by the train en-

Dawson Y. W. A. Celebrates Birthday.

Burks Jr., and assistant councilor, Mrs. T. S. Kerlin, have more than doubled their membership in the first year. The next meeting will be held January 11, at the home of Misses Virginia and Kathleen Easterling, Fort McPherson.

Lewis Vaughn Jr. Host At Birthday Party.

Lewis Vaughn Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Vaughn, was host at a theater party Saturday afternoon at the Buckhead theater in celebration of his tenth birthday anniversary. Invited for the affair were Betty Brantley, Betty Burns, Laura Aycock, Betty McIlwain, Lois Kaulback, James Lowry III, Mark Pope, Thomas Hendricks, Dempsey Respass, Charles Wilson, Thomas McIlwain, Charles Elmer Frank Gorman, Edwin Lunsford and Mel Aycock.

Each charming belle was assigned to two minutes of ardent love-making to the dinner partner seated on her right. Should any one of the masculine guests fail to respond to the wooing, the girls were directed to turn their heart pourings to the gentleman seated on their left.

The chronicler of this column feels safe in placing a bet that the latter instruction was unnecessary, as Mr. Darby is within the know as to the heart affairs of all the debutantes.

McNeely, and Captain McNeely, of Allentown, Pa., who were visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Anderson, on Whitlock avenue. Friday Mrs. Anderson entertained at luncheon in honor of Mrs. McNeely, who has been the recipient of a number of lovely social functions during her visit. Captain and Mrs. McNeely returned to their home Saturday.

Eddie Moore Sees Infield as Only Problem of Crackers

Is It Possible Coast Calendars Change Like Zone Time?

It is very fine indeed to read all the glowing tributes written on the coast about the southern victory which Alabama produced in the arroyo seco on January 1. The papers are coming in in every mail.

But I also note that the boys are beginning to weaken a bit. One chap in Oakland even suggests that Alabama was but a fair team and that Stanford was not in condition. This may be dismissed as so much childish effluvia.

The disturbing irritant is that from the lads who keep insisting that Alabama was a bit lucky and could not have done it again, say on Wednesday after Tuesday.

Somehow this gets under my skin in a most exasperating manner. The game was advertised in the papers. Fully 85,000 people came to see the game on the date advertised. There must have been millions listening in on the radio.

Stanford was there practicing for the game. It is to be presumed that Stanford knew in advance when the game was to be played.

The date was January 1, not January 2 or 3. That was the day Stanford was to play football. And the day Alabama was to play football. There was no confusion about the date.

Alabama played great football. Stanford played her greatest game of the year and was defeated handsily. The Stanford team was in condition, even the men who had been hurt in the last scheduled game playing 55 and 60 minutes at top speed.

Why the suggestion that Alabama could not repeat on the morrow? In fact, I think Alabama could have repeated. The game against Stanford was not Alabama's best one. In fact, I think I saw them at a higher pitch during the season.

I am wondering if these gentlemen would have peered over Whistler's shoulder when he had completed the portrait of his mother, and said:

"I don't believe you could do it again tomorrow." Of if, when Cavalcade had won the Derby last spring, they would whisper into his sliken ear: "You were lucky today. I don't believe you could repeat tomorrow."

All that is so much stuff and nonsense and comes with poor grace. I am getting this off my chest and trust I will be forgiven.

The date of the game was January 1. Alabama was not supposed to do it over on January 2.

BANQUET TONIGHT.

They are to banquet the Alabama football team at Tusaloosa tonight—the official banquet with 400 people to be present and a program which likely will stretch far into the night.

Alabama is very justly proud of this team and of its coaches, Frank Thomas and his staff. And no one will refuse the right of every man to get up and say his little piece.

Never have I known a team which so aroused the south with a victory as did this one. I think it a very fine tonic. It came at a time when things are slacked up a bit.

THE AMAZING RECORD.

It would be highly improper to close out the reports on this football team without a resume of the season's record.

The Tide's offensive mark reached 3,619 yards for the season. Do some arithmetic.

The backs carried the ball more than two miles. They covered the length of the field more than 36 times.

Of those yards 2,550 were through the line. The air was gained 1,069 yards.

The average yardage per game is 362 yards—most amazing.

Of 139 passes attempted, 67 were completed for an average of practically 16 yards a toss. (And they try to say the Stanford game was a lucky one.)

The team led the nation in scoring with 316 points for an average of more than 30 points per game.

You may paste this away in some book. And wait for a team to match it—a major team meeting major foes—and wait and wait and wait.

NO WINTER PENNANT.

I am very much in favor of the plan to win no winter pennants for the Atlanta Crackers. As I recall it, Atlanta has won every winter pennant since 1925 and nary a summer flag.

Our pennant pole has had no gonfalon flying from the halyards, except an imaginary one. The enthusiasm of the baseball writers is tremendous in the winter time. It is time to call a halt. Let's award the winter pennant to New Orleans or Memphis. Atlanta is the cellar team this winter.

It is also splendid news to learn that the Atlanta manager is not going to take himself too seriously. In the past the Atlanta managers, as soon as they were appointed, began to take themselves and the job very seriously indeed. So seriously, in fact, that they became temperamental, like movie stars, and were inclined to speak sharply to the press or mayhap get on a high horse and have a peeve at some of the boys who might toss one tiny little barb.

The newspapers could get along without baseball, but the baseball stands would be, to all intents and purposes, quite nude and naked without the newspapers. There is no intent to blackjack the boys. The papers find baseball quite a help in presenting entertainment.

But there is no need for the managers to hire themselves high horses the minute they sign an Atlanta contract.

Mr. Earl Mann is the finest man we've had in the secretarial and business office. And Eddie Moore is going along being himself and not developing any temperament. This is most encouraging. In fact, I am so encouraged about Mr.

CELTICS DEFEAT JACKETS, 28-25, BEFORE 3,500

Kidd, Sophomore, Leads Tech Scoring With Eight Points.

By Jimmy Jones.

Those wandering minstrels of basketball, the Rosenblum-Celtics, stepped off in Atlanta last night to give their annual exhibition of legendary skill at handling the oversized leather sphere and while about it, defeated Georgia Tech, 28 to 25, before a wide-eyed crowd of something like 3,500 at the auditorium.

The Celtics, engrossed in rendering one of their famous sleight-of-hand passing maneuvers, almost let the Jackets slip up on them in the last five minutes of play when Cullen Kidd, a skinny sophomore from Milwaukee, got "hot" as the boys say, and began flipping the ball through the netting from long range to put 8 points on the Tech total and make the Celtics look much less than they are.

SOPHOMORES DO WELL. Coach Munderoff's substitutes, particularly Kidd, the sophomore, did much better than the starting team. At the end of the first half, the Celtics were leading by the score of 23-7. Munderoff sent in three freshmen to start the second half. Sophomore Burtz, Bouliware, and the veteran "Kitty" Katz at forwards and young Kidd for Gilbert Stacey at guard.

The substitutes not only accounted for 18 of Tech's points but the Celtics made only five points against them. They also handled the ball better than the starting group, who were a bit rugged. Of course, the Celtics were not the finest of sports, and always interested in giving the crowd "show," might have stepped on the gun and won by a wider margin, but they don't care to win by big scores—just so they can.

KIDD LEADS SCORERS. The performance of Kidd, Bouliware and Hyder, all sophomores, showed that they are at least as good as the seniors and the Jackets shouldn't be so bad in their own class. Hays, another sophomore, handled the ball nicely but did not connect for a goal from the floor.

The Celtics, amiable as ever, clowned a lot throughout the game. Eddie Moore did his own set of perfect. Towering Joe Landick delighted the gallery with his feat of "palming" the ball and passing it with one hand. Little Davey Banks, the best showman of them all, kept the house in an uproar several times, scooting the ball between the Tech players' legs to big laughing "Dehnert" and at times slipping it backward to Dehnert.

BARRY IS GOOD. The veteran Pete Barry, who has been playing basketball 20 years, had a big night with 11 points at forward, most of them made with ridiculous ease, while black-haired Nat Hays, who won the game with amazing speed at running guard.

At the end of the game, the Celtics, the greatest ambassadors of good-will in the sport, obligingly autographed programs for the school kids. The crowd was considered very good, the youngsters of high school age—most of them basketball players—predominating. The balcony was packed from end to end.

The Celtics play in Macon tonight and Statesboro tomorrow night. They are enjoying big crowds in the southern tour, proving that their popularity is not waned with regular appearances.

Among the spectators last night were H. J. Stegman, athletic director at Georgia, and Howell Hollic, coach at Athens High, who came over for the game.

J. J. Doran, of Davidson-Paxon, a former part owner of the Celtics, also saw the game.

Tech High Wins Over Fort Mac, 53-43.

By MELVIN PAZOL.

Tech High's basketball team polished off their season by defeating the Fort MacPherson quintet, 53 to 43, in a preliminary to the Celtic game last night at the city auditorium.

The Tech High first team was sent back into the game, letting their whole squad participate in the workout. Late in the game when the Fort Mac boys closed in on the score, the Tech High first team was sent back into the game.

Butler and Tinsley led the scoring for the Smithies. Butler scored 16 points and Tinsley 14. Ball, Fort Mac, scored 15 points to lead his team.

The Smithies showed a smooth-working team which should go far in defense of its city cage laurels. Capable reserves are on hand in case of necessity.

Tech High ends ends its week's schedule with game with Canton High here Friday.

Summary. TECH HIGH (35): Pos. FORT MAC (23) Butler (16), Tinsley (14), Ball (15), Hays (1), Stacey (1), Hickey (1), Ranks (2), Herlihy (2), Landick (2), Hays (1), Stacey (1), Hickey (1), Ranks (2), Herlihy (2), Landick (2).

HOW IT FEELS TO LOSE. (An Interview With Harry Kipke.)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9.—(Mr. Kipke is sitting on a chair near the bed, on which are two suitcases which are being packed when the Michigan interview is interrupted.)

Interviewer: Mr. Kipke, how does it feel to lose after winning for four seasons?

Kipke: How do you think?

Interviewer: I imagine you will be pretty glad when this school year is over.

Kipke: I'm glad right now. The football season is over.

Interviewer: What happened out at Michigan?

Kipke: We didn't have any backfield and we had a couple of linemen and no luck. It was in the cards. It did us a world of good to lose.

Interviewer: What do you mean? Kipke: You know what I mean. Michigan had won 35 out of 39 games and been beaten only once since 1920. That is quite a record and it is the second best record in the Big Ten.

Interviewer: So what?

Kipke: So—oo—oo—oo, when we lost Renner and we had no passer, and we had no backfield and we had no linemen, and our prayers weren't working out very well, we began to lose. When we were beaten by one team after another, all the rest of our teams were simply turned out to see. A slaughter and to be able to say, "See how the mighty are fallen—y-n-a-a-n."

Interviewer: You think they laid you out?

Kipke: Of course they did. Who wouldn't? If Michigan hadn't beaten Illinois, let's say, in five seasons, and Illinois was coming for a game against us at Ann Arbor, and we had a pretty fair team, you could bet your boots we'd pack the stadium and we'd run up as high a score as we could. Anybody would. I guess.

Interviewer: Why was Michigan down and out this season?

Kipke: Material, mostly. We had lost all our 1933 team, which was about the best ever had. You know, they had a Water at tackle and Bernard at center by snapping your fingers. In the state of Michigan, too, things are tougher than they are in the Big Ten.

Interviewer: Who else gets complaints?

Kipke: Purdue, Minnesota, Iowa and usually Illinois, although Northwestern and Chicago cut into Zuppke's supply.

Interviewer: How have the darling alumni been this season?

Kipke: Daring. I'll bet they have. Kipke: They have, really. I have a stack of letters as high as you are from Michigan alumni everywhere sympathizing with the situation.

Interviewer: They tell it was due, this losing streak?

Kipke: Exactly. They began to assume some of the blame themselves. No more of those "dumb Swede" teams from Minneapolis that you can lick, T. G. B. in the last minute of play. You're lucky if you can score on the Gophers now.

Interviewer: You could have used a whole team this season.

Kipke: I think the fact that we won four years in a row had something to do with it. Then, Michigan men understand each other.

CHICAGO CUBS SEEK TO REGAIN LOST MONEY

Wrigley Places Financial Loss at $600,000 in Three Years.

By Charles Dunkley.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs, thought to be a tremendous money maker, have been a financial flop for the last three years. Philip K. Wrigley, 40-year-old president, revealed today that the club lost $600,000 in that period. The loss for 1934 was around $200,000.

Said young Wrigley: "It seems to be the general impression, even among National League owners, that the Cubs are a 'gold mine.' One look at our books, showing what we have paid out, and what we have received, would quickly cause a revision of that opinion."

There are three major reasons for the huge deficit, Wrigley explained. These are: Falling off in attendance, generous salaries to the players and a tremendous cash expenditure for the purchase of stars, some of whom failed to click.

NEW POLICY. Wrigley continued: "No club owner, no matter how much money he has, can continue to lose money at such a rate. My job, as president of the team and director of its policies, will be to restore the Cubs to a paying proposition."

Asked if the 1935 pay roll of the club would be lower than last year, Wrigley replied: "Not much. It will be better balanced, however. Our policy is to keep the pay roll at a level to maintain a club that we believe has a good chance to win the National League championship this year."

In balancing the pay roll of the team, Owner Wrigley indicated that some of the stars, who failed last season, would find their salaries more than made up by the salaries of youngsters and veterans who would be given boosts.

CUB LOSSES. Wrigley pointed out that the Cubs lost about $50,000 less last year than in 1933. The 1934 loss included the purchase of high-priced players. These included Chuck Klein, purchased from the Phillies for a reported $75,000; Bill Lee, pitcher, who cost $30,000; Tuck Stainback, Roy Joiner and others. Added to this was the $220,000 paid for the 1934 season and $19,000 for Babe Herman.

Wrigley said the Cubs had more money than any major league team in the last three years.

I am in the game for the sport of it, Wrigley added, "whereas the club makes money or not, but it is essential that the club breaks nearly even or shows a little profit."

GRANT BEATS DR. MCCAULIFF

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 9.—(UP)—Four seeded players advanced into the semi-finals of the Miami Billmore tennis singles championship today.

Sidney R. Wood, New York, Davis cup player, ranked No. 2 among United States' men, was extended to the limit to win his match with 17-year-old Frank Guernsey, Orlando, Guernsey is the Florida state champion.

Eastern Clay Courts Champion Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., seeded No. 4 in the tournament, lost to Arthur J. By FRANK MACMILLAN.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(P)—Stock prices

fluctuated aimlessly today. A midday strengthening failed to follow through, and the close was mixed at the close, with most gains and losses confined to fractions. In bonds, federal government obligations closed flat but corporate bonds followed the pattern of stocks to end irregular.

Grains were under moderate selling pressure as the markets awaited the government's annual crop report to be released Thursday, with both wheat and corn fractions to a cent a bushel lower. Cotton lost from 15 to 40 cents a bale.

Oil stocks continued to reflect nervousness of traders over possibility the supreme court's decision declaring the production control section of the national recovery act unconstitutional might result in a flood of "hot" oil.

Tobacco shares were a soft spot, with American Tobacco B, Liggett & Myers B and Reynolds B from fractions to 1-1/2 points lower. Utilities were steady. Consolidated Gas picked up more than a point.

Power Consumption.

The better feeling in the utility group was furthered by power consumption figures for the week of January 5. An increase of 1.2 per cent over the same week of 1934 was registered, compared with a gain of 7.2 per cent for the previous week. The latest figures indicated a steady holiday period, and the improvement over the previous week was more than seasonal.

Stocks failed to respond noticeably to the iron age midweek report setting operations at 44-1/2 per cent of capacity for the industry, a lift of 3-1/2 points during the week. United States Steel Common and Preferred were fractionally down, while other leaders in this division were steady or registered minor gains.

This lack of enthusiasm for so important a group of industries in the face of good news was coupled by some observers with the slight decline in the motor shares trade report which likewise was favorable. In some brokerage circles the thought was expressed that the market might react after its steady rise since mid-December.

Trading Turnover.

Trading turnover was lighter than on Tuesday, with volume in the exchange at 880,000 shares. The Associated Press average of 60 selected stocks showed only a minor gain of .02 of a point at 40.84.

Among leaders which registered improvement of fractions to a point or more were Westinghouse Electric at 33-1/2, Allied Chemical Institute in Electric at 23, New York Central at 20-7/8, Union Carbide at 47-3/8, Remington Rand at 11, Western Union at 33-3/4, Southern Railway at 20-5/8. Many others showed losses of small amounts to a point or so, including American Can at 114-1/2, Atchafalpa at 54-1/2, International Harvester at 41-1/2, S. N. Harlow at 25-3/4, Southern Pacific at 18 and Union Pacific at 100.
